Carpi Considers Launching His Own Investigation of Wife's Death

Last weekend, almost three years after the disappearance of Laura Carpi, two and a half years after her husband was charged with her murder, and just three days after he was acquitted in Mercer County Superior Court, life was returning to normal up at 148 Fairway Drive.

Jennifer, 14, was away for a weekend in New England with some friends who were hunting for a summer home in Martha's Vineyard. Colin Jr., 13, had taken off on a one-day skiing expedition. Downstairs in the Carpi basement, David 12, and one of his friends were banging on a set of drums. Laura, 10, known as Lisa, was playing with a kitten in the kitchen.

Outside, on the wooded lawn in front of the long, white ranch-style house, Colin Carpi was saying good-bye to one visitor and welcoming another. From the back of the house, in the direction of the kidney-shaped swimming pool, came the sound of barking dogs.

A black English setter came bounding into the front yard and ran up to Mr. Carpi. Another one, a kind of speckled white in color, followed the first and jumped up against Mr. Carpi, "This is Puppy," he said.

"Puppy is the ghost," he explained. "The dead dog. The one I shot...the one I killed in front of the children." He turned to his guests and smiled. "Incredible, isn't it?"

Ever since the disappearance of his wife on February 8, 1971, Mr. Carpi had been the subject of rumors such as the dog-shooting incident. Now, after his acquittal by the jury, the investment counselor and business entrepreneur was free to respond to those rumors and to those who had spread them.

He has chosen not to. Instead he wants to concentrate his immediate efforts on a campaign to improve the American judicial system. "I don't want to attack any individuals," he said. "I want to improve the system that allows these injustices to happen."

Mr. Carpi said that a review of America's judicial system has been included for years in the outline of a book he has wanted to write on the challenges faced by the United States. "The attention focussed on my case has created an opportunity to make some real improvements," he said. "It would be irresponsible not to take advantage of it."

He wasted no time making his points. Last Tuesday, Mr. Carpi walked into Mercer County Court with several typewritten pages in his briefcase. He waited throughout that day and then into the afternoon on Wednesday before the jury, which twice asked to have testimony read to it, returned with its verdict; not guilty.

Mr. Carpi smiled calmly, greeted his fiancée and secretary, Ruth Anne Dirkes, and then ushered the press into an anteroom for a conference. He sharply criticized the process that had just resulted in his freedom. "To the state, truth and falsehood become irrelevant; right and wrong become irrelevant. The situation suddenly becomes a contest between two sides, one or both willing to lie, distort, misrepresent and play on emotions in order to persuade a group of untrained laymen how to vote."

Later that week, in his home on Fairway Drive, Mr. Carpi eagerly elaborated on the flaws he feels exist in the American judicial system. He also described, with less eagerness, the background of much of the testimony presented during his trial. And he indicated that information contained in two private investigators' reports made available to the defense only two months ago could possibly lead to the real killer or killers of his wife.

"I am more and more of the opinion that someone hired professional killers to do Laura in," said Mr. Carpi. What was the motive? he was asked. "The motives were a mile wide and up to $10 million high," he said. "There were some real clues in those investigators'

Car Owners Battle with Worst Gas Shortage; Stations List Standard Operating Schedules

"My kingdom for a horse!" That could have been the battle-cry in Princeton this week as drivers jostled each other for the privilege of sitting in line for an hour to get a couple of dollars worth of gas.

Monday afternoon, Borough Police Chief Michael Carnevale called the gas station owners together in Borough Hall. In a one-hour meeting they blocked out the schedule they hope will bring some order and sanity to chaos. (See box at right.)

A week ago, lead by John Donaldson who owns Griggs' Corner American on Witherspoon, the station owners themselves had agreed on a plan they thought would be workable and fair: all stations would be open at the same time, for two hours in the morning and two hours in the afternoon. The plan went into effect Friday.

But they had no way of knowing the traffic snarls that would be the result.

Early Monday morning, the foot of Bayard Lane, where three gas stations stand in a row like pumps, it looked like Napoleon's retreat from Moscow. Swirling snow, cars backed up into Birch Avenue lined up for the Exxon station, cars trying to enter Birch from Bayard Lane so they could get into the Mobil Station across Birch from Exxon, cars using Birch as a thoroughfare, other cars—vainly, almost—trying to go north on Bayard Lane and finding themselves slowed by cars backing and filling through the snow and slush as drivers realized the situation was hopeless.

At another gasoline-alley strip, the one on Nassau where Mobil, Exxon, Sinclair and Gulf are all neighbors, it was even worse. Children headed for St. Paul's school were trying to cross streets, against cars and the snow and the hazard of drivers who might make a sudden swerve after deciding not to try for gas, after all.

Help! So the Police Chief called the meeting. He and the force were worried, not only about traffic, but about emergencies. How could a fire-truck or ambulance make it through the snarls? He invited Township Traffic Officer Sgt. Anthony Nini and Township Sgt. Michael Lisi, as well as Borough officers.

Besides the schedule, they worked out rules: no en-trances from Nassau. All lines in side streets.

"We had fantastic co-operation from the station owners," Chief Carnevale said afterwards. "they were wonderful."

The schedule does not include Al Ross' Sinclair, Turney Motors or Mary Watts. They did not attend Monday's meeting.

Fill 'er up? No. Chief Porter, reporting Monday even numbers can buy gas on night to Township Committee, even days; licenses ending in

Also on Monday, Governor Brendan Byrne was given emergency power by the legislature to impose a rationing program and to require minimum and maximum sales.

State or municipal rationing could follow the plan adopted in Elizabeth: drivers whose automobile licenses end in night to Township Committee, even days; licenses ending in

Carnevale acknowledges, "although the general consensus was that there would be a $4 to $5 limit."

Some stations will sell only $2 worth. Chief Carnevale thinks that is too low.

Wait and See. Will it work? Nobody knows. February will continue rough, station owners say. They hope March will be better.

Tuesday, the day the new schedule went into effect, the line for Griggs' Corner

A Time to Say "No"

Hundreds of Princeton area cars are short of gasoline partially because other drivers are waiting in line even though their tanks are more than half filled. One veteran service station owner told of a man who asked "for whatever you can give me," and his tank then proved to be full when 35 cents worth had been pumped.

Over-worked and harried as they are, Princeton's service station operators and their employees are in a position to do themselves and the unselfish segment of the public a good turn. TOWN TOPICS suggests that anyone whose gauge registers at least 50 percent full be told, "Sorry, there are plenty of others who need gas more than you do."

American went down the bit of Witherspoon from the station's spot on the Hulfish corner, around into Wiggins all the way to Chambers, up Chambers to the other Hulfish corner. Waits at most other stations were over an hour.

Also on Monday, Governor Brendan Byrne was given emergency power by the legislature to impose a rationing program and to require minimum and maximum sales.

State or municipal rationing could follow the plan adopted in Elizabeth: drivers whose automobile licenses end in night to Township Committee, even days; licenses ending in odd numbers line up on odd days.

Borough Mayor Robert W. Cawley, reaching all the way to Washington, has sent telegrams to Senator Clifford P. Case, Senator Harrison Williams and Congressman Peter H.B. Frelinghuysen.

"We need prompt action to increase gas supplies in New Jersey," the mayor told the three representatives. "Gasoline shortage is critical in Princeton as in the rest of New Jersey. Continuation could seriously affect local services and businesses."

"Traffic congestion around gas stations is creating hazards for cars and pedestrians," the mayor continued. "Most of the U.S. is not experiencing shortages, which makes New Jersey citizens even more upset."

"I Was In This Line..." Everybody who owns a car has a gas story to tell. So do the station attendants. Harassment, aggravation, irritation—"keep your temper and co-operate," advises Chief Porter, adding a bit of impossible advice, "Don't be disheartened if you get close to the pump and it closes..."

Some stations hang a sign reading "This is the last car" on the rear of the last car they have gas enough to serve. Police tell about drivers who get out of their cars, remove the sign, and hang it on another car farther down the line. It took police in a patrol car actually getting in line to stop that one.

Another trick is to find out when a station plans to open, and the route of the line. Then park the car and leave it. In one case, the driver didn't get back in time and the line had already formed, with cars bulging out around the parked car, leaving it out in the cold altogether.

When a woman in line found her car stuck, men in two cars behind her got out to give her a push. The line moved just then, and two cars quickly sneaked in ahead of the Good Samaritans.

Saddest of all is the story of the drivers who lined up at a Nassau Street station starting at 6:45 Monday morning. Because there was one car, others lined up behind and soon there were more than a dozen, waiting for the station to open. But it never did. It stayed closed all day.

Walk to School? Another driver, so to speak, with a story to tell is Ralph Bennett who has to keep Princeton's school buses moving.

An original Federal directive to supply schools on the basis of what they were reports. The police may not have recognized them as such."

Mr. Carpi would not elaborate but he said that, if the police don't follow up the investigation of his wife's death, then he would consider initiating his own investigation.

One of Mr. Carpi's regrets about his own case, he said, was the length of time required by the jury to reach a verdict—more than 15 hours. "I really wanted to get a directed verdict from the judge after we had presented our side," he said. "Or at least a quick decision from the jury. Maybe 15 minutes or 45."

"That might have taken some of the strain off my reputation. Now I suppose there will be people who agree with the prosecutor and will say this guy pulled off a perfect crime."

Mr. Carpi attributed the lengthy deliberations to the skill of the Mercer County Assistant Prosecutor, Richard Altman. "I admire his skill within a system I think needs radical change," said Mr. Carpi. "He confused the case with smokescreens, he created a case where there was none. But do we want this kind of legal system?"

Many of these smokescreens could have been cleared up, Mr. Carpi argued, if only he had had the opportunity to answer questions fully and state his side of the story. Under cross-examination by Mr. Altman during the trial, Mr. Carpi's answers were limited by the prosecutor to a yes or no.

Muscle Man? The confusion about the scratches on his face and hands could have been easily explained, Mr. Carpi said. A legal secretary and an old school friend both testified they did not notice scratches on his face the day of Laura's disappearance. A detective who interviewed him the next day said he did.

"It was one of the few areas of testimony that was entirely accurate," said Mr. Carpi. "I didn't have the scratch that day. But the next day I was playing a game with Lisa and she accidentally scratched me. The scuff marks on my hands were not at all unusual. I was doing a lot of wood-working at that time."

What about the 200 pounds on the barbells, found in Mr. Carpi's house the night of his arrest? "I have a Sears-Roebuck weightlifting set, with no more than 170 pounds total in weights. At that time only about 80 pounds were on one barbell, and then more weights were on two hand bars," he said. "Incidentally if you want to see something silly, try rolling up a 15-pound dummy inside a 9 x 12 rug, and then carrying it out of a house and into a car. It's practically impossible, I tried it."

Township Detective Norman Servis testified that Mr. Carpi told him after the disappearance that he had been at Laura's house at either 8:45 or 9 or 9:30 to drop off a support check. The FREEDOM TO SPEAK: For 2½ years, accused murderer Colin Carpi was under strict orders from his lawyer not to tell anyone anything. Now that he has been found innocent, Mr. Carpi has plenty to say. Among his subjects: flaws in the American judicial system, the misuse of lie detector tests, and theories about what might have happened to his wife.

prosecutor, in his summation, called this one of Mr. Carpi's fatal errors—admitting that he was at the house, in Mr. Altman's words, "between 8:45 and 9:30."

Cost: $100,000. "Altman made it look as if I had changed my testimony right up until the trial," said Mr. Carpi. "In fact those first estimates I gave were only intended to shed light on Laura's activities that day. I couldn't make a better estimate until our private investigator found a memo saying I called the lawyer's office at 9:03 that morning. Working backwards I made a final estimate which didn't change a minute in the 2½ years between then and the trial."

Mr. Carpi, who spent about $100,000 in legal fees over the past three years, would like to see several major changes in the judicial system to alleviate such smokescreens. "Are we out to get the truth or are we in a contest to find which lawyer is better?" he asked.

First, he said, the defense should have an opportunity to present its case at the indictment proceedings before the grand jury. Second, a fact-finding panel should be introduced as another step in the process, between the grand jury and the trial jury. "The jury just isn't trained to discern the facts. They are up against ambitious, bright state's attorneys, with visions of high political offices dancing in their heads."

Also, the defendant should have the right to answer all questions fully. "For 2½ years from the time I was arrested, I had to keep my mouth shut," said Mr. Carpi. "Finally I had my chance and Altman put me in situations where I was damned either way I answered."

Limit Publicity. Finally, he argued, the press should be strictly limited in what aspects of the process it can cover. "There should be no comment at all before the indictment is handed down. Then just the fact and substance of the indictment—several sentences usually—should be reported," Mr. Carpi said.

"The press should be allowed and in fact encouraged to cover the trial—it's a safeguard," said the 1953 Princeton University graduate. "But no reports should be printed until after the verdict is in." Mr. Carpi said the publicity associated with this case, including that in the two Trenton dailies and the two Princeton weeklies, had damaged his reputation probably beyond repair.

The goal of the prosecution, Mr. Carpi contended, was not to find the truth, but to get a conviction. He believes that a full disclosure of the evidence at the State Road house would prove beyond a reasonable doubt that it was not the scene

Only three specks of blood were found positively to be human. At that time, Mr. Carpi said, one of his sons was suffering from spontaneous nose bleeds and the other had impetigo. Mr. Carpi found incredible the prosecution's claim that the murderer had used a thick, stringy mop to clean up the blood and then succeeded in cleaning the mop of all but one speck of blood, which experts could not even classify as human.

Carpi's Theory. Laura's mother and one of her friends testified for the prosecution that none of Laura's clothes were missing from the house. Mr. Carpi said he and Jennifer looked through the house several days after her disappearance and noticed "several basic items of clothing missing."

Mr. Carpi is fairly certain, he said, that Laura invited someone she knew, or a friend of someone she knew, into the house that day, and made a quick decision to change her day's activities. While entertaining the guest, coffee was spilled on the rug, a tightly woven, pure white rug which stained easily unless it was cleaned immediately.

His theory continues that Laura asked that her visitor take her first to a cleaner with the rug before going on to their destination. Instead, the visitor delivered Laura and the rug directly to the murderer, if the murderer and the visitor were not the same person. The rug simply became another item to be dumped.

Mr. Carpi's theory is buttressed, he said, by the private investigators' reports. "They showed that a lot of cars were parked at the house that day," said Mr. Carpi. "Amazingly, no one ever saw anyone in these cars."

Lies Detected? Defense Attorney Gerald Stockman produced two witnesses who said they saw cars parked in front of Laura's house the day she disappeared. "We could have had more, but Gerry argued against it. He thought the prosecution might explain one away and then ruin our credibility."

One piece of evidence was not used against Mr. Carpi at the trial, but, he maintained, it had already done its harm. That was the result of three lie detector tests he took in the hours immediately following his arrest at the Princeton Township police headquarters.

"Stockman urged me not to do it," Mr. Carpi said, "but I was under the impression I might not be held if I passed it." After the first one the examiner told him, according to Mr. Carpi, "that there was no pattern of falsehood but that he could not say I had answered all the questions with absolute truthfulness." Mr. Carpi tried two more examinations, each time sure

Borough Plans First Total Property Revaluation Since 1965

A budget up six percent from 1973, providing for total revaluation of all taxable property—the first in nine years—and giving number-one dollar priority to sewers, will be introduced next Monday by Borough Council.

Actual introduction will be brief, at a 5 p.m. session. On Tuesday, at Council's regular public meeting, there will be a lengthy exposition of the new budget. The public is urged to come. This isn't the legal public hearing—that will be next month—only a public airing.

It's a $2,859,208 budget, up from the 1973 figure of $2,621,216. The amount to be raised by taxes shaves close to the one-million mark: $992,001, compared to $938,343 last year.

The tax rate will be 98 cents per $100 of assessed valuation. That is four cents higher than the 1973 figure of 94 cents. The increase of four tax points was originally an increase of 13 points, but it has been reduced by trimming and pruning over the past month.

Council has used an unusually large $313,000 surplus from 1973 to cushion the impact of sewer work and Princeton High School remodeling, as bills come in over the next five years.

Of this amount $215,000 will be used to reduce this year's tax rate. This will leave $100,000 ($99,310) in surplus.

"Otherwise, we could have had a lower budget increase," explained Council budget chairman Robert Powell at a press conference, "but we wanted to soften the long-term effect of those big projects."

(Surplus breakdown: $50,000 saved by administrative frugality; $80,000 budgeted for surplus in 1973 and never used; the $186,000 used last year to keep the '73 tax rate down.)

"We've said 'no' to a lot of things," Mr. Powell said regretfully, "we've told various departments that growth in new programs has got to be slow."

Highlights:

- $22,000 for revaluation, to start this spring or early summer. Every house and piece of taxable property will be revalued. Mr. Powell said Mercer County estimates the Borough assesses at only 68 percent of true value (technically it should be 100). This is one of the lowest percentages in the county and ominous warnings to reevaluate have been coming from county officials. The county can require a municipality to reevaluate.

- "The disparity is too wide," Mr. Powell explained, "some taxpayers pay more than their share, others don't pay their fair share. It will not be a pleasant task."

- $200,000 to be raised through bonds for a consulting engineer to examine the sewer collector system, and make a blueprint of recommendations. Federal reimbursement is possible, but municipal officials feel they can't wait. Actual repair could be in the millions.

- $10,200 as the estimated Borough share of a $30,000 Borough-Township-University allocation to take care of sewer problems as they arise in 1974. Half will go toward problems already known.

(Costs of the sewer study will be borne by all three members of the Sewer Operating Committee: Borough, Township and University. Repairs are paid for by whichever community uses the part repaired, so the precise Borough share isn't known.)

- Funds for a seven percent "guideline" salary increase for Borough employees. This is a seven percent pool, from which merit increases are drawn; it doesn't mean every employee gets the seven.

"We can't keep up with the cost of living or we'd go broke," Mr. Powell said. "It's one of the largest increases we've put in, but times are rough for the lower salary scales, making $6,000 to $8,000."

- $13,000 as the Borough's share of a shuttlebus, scheduled to make its first run this spring, and to continue for six months. Riders will leave cars in Jadwin or Community Park lots and hop the shuttle into town. No final decision has been reached on an intra-city bus.

A shortage of Mercer Metro buses, plus President Nixon's veto of the mass-transit bill present problems.

- $2,754 as the Borough's share of $8,100 allotted to the Joint Recreation Board for a new part-time director of programs for senior citizens and women, and expanded wading pool hours: more hours per day, and 12 summer weeks instead of eight.

"Recreation has an

Of The Town

unusually tight budget," Mr. Powell said.

- $2,380 as the Borough's share of $7,000 to the Princeton Public Library for new carpeting and children's evening hours four evenings a week.

- $33,000 for two new traffic lights: Franklin and Harrison and Harrison and Prospect, both of which have state approval. The University will pay for a Washington and Prospect light, the state for one at Elm and Stockton.

- $3,400 for three or four downtown bike racks, downtown benches and thorough renovations of neighborhood parks.

- $2,500 to the Board of Health for two new programs:

expanded health screening of senior citizens ($1,500) and $1,000 for dental screening of indigent children, a program dropped by the state. The Borough feels it should be continued and is picking up the cost.

- $1,700 as the Borough's share of $5,000 for a Borough-Township Planning Director, part-time. The director will screen applications and make recommendations to the Planning Board.

- $500 as the Borough's share of $1,000 to the Joint Commission on Aging. No decision has been reached on continuing "Crosstown 62," Mr. Powell said. Its cost and effectiveness are under question.

Ups and Downs. The largest decrease was $30,000 saved by both Borough and Township (half and half) in the operation of Corner House, the drug treatment center. It occurs because of a Federal grant.

The Borough saved last year on snow-plowing because of a mild winter, and saved $3,000 in the bid on computer time for the violations department.

The new budget process, with earlier and tighter deadlines, will be continued next year with minor adjustments. Having the complete budget by January 1 has been "exceptionally helpful," said Borough Mayor Robert W. Cawley. "It used to come in piecemeal."

Citizen boards apparently weren't quite sure of the proceedings, Mayor Cawley said, and didn't always turn up at their scheduled autumn hearings with the administrator.

And the hoped-for citizen involvement, a kind of participatory democracy in which citizens were invited to help make the budget, "hasn't been much greater than it ever was," Mr. Powell observed.

Smith, Meyerhofer Win Township School Seats

The quietest school board election campaign in Princeton's history, either before or after regionalization, plus the gas shortage, plus icy weather resulted in a voter turn-out of 8.5%, Borough and Township average, for Tuesday's election.

J.B. Smith and Dietrich Meyerhofer won the two Township seats with 703 and 643 votes respectively. Cornelia Hopfield was close with 611, while Henry Wood trailed with 137.

Hannah Fox, school board president, who ran uncontested in the Borough for her second term, received 115 complimentary votes.

The school budget passed by more than two to one. The vote: 863 "yes" for current expense, 327 "no"; 823 "yes" for land and buildings, 318 "no". Borough and Township votes are combined to reach a budget total.

In the Borough 2.6% of the 5,802 registered voters cast ballots. In the Township, the percentage of the 8,418 registered voters was 12.5.

"I was especially impressed with the clean campaign this year, compared to campaigns of the last few years," said Mr. Meyerhofer, after his victory. "I hope this will carry over to the board, and that we will all work well together."

Mr. Meyerhofer underscored the importance of choosing a high school remodeling plan which the board likes, and which "we can sell to the voters."

"I emphasized problems and not issues in my campaign," Mr. Smith said, after the results were in, "and I still think in those terms. As for problems, I see school spirit and school atmosphere, the high school building renovation and the shrinking population as problems we've got to cope with."

he could improve the results. The lie detector evidence was instrumental in his indictment, he said, even though the prosecutor and his lawyer had agreed that the results would not be used in court.

At Mercer County Court House, after the defendant had been acquitted, Wilbur H. Mathesius, deputy attorney general in charge of the Mercer County Prosecutor's Office, bitterly told reporters: "I want you to know, I want everyone to know, I want the jury to know, that he flunked a lie detector test three times."

The Dog? That weekend, as he relaxed in the living room of his house, which doubles as his office, Mr. Carpi was asked about Mr. Mathesius' statement.

"How is our law perverted when we are out to defame our own citizens," he replied.

And the dog? How did that rumor ever start? "Easy," he said. "That dog got in the habit of taking our cream after the milkman delivered it and drinking it out of the carton on the back lawn. The dog obedience book will tell you that the only way to teach a dog something is wrong is to punish it while it's in the act of disobeying.

"The only solution in this case was a beebie gun. I shot the dog once in the rump with a beebie gun. It never drank the cream again."

Incidentally, one of the "no" answers in this budget went to the firemen: no new truck this year. They now cost $50,000 to $60,000 each. Three have been purchased in three years at a cost of $176,000, and this year will see the latest all paid off.

SAFETY BANDS OFFERED

For School Children. In an effort to improve the visibility of children going to school in the early morning darkness, 17 Princeton area businesses are offering special reflective, elasticized arm bands at a nominal cost of 49 cents.

The arm bands are being produced by Harris Manufacturing Company of Trenton in conjunction with WHWH radio. For the name of the nearest business distributing the arm bands, call the radio station at 924-3600.

Temperers Near Flaring Point at End of Evening's Debate on IDA

The validity of secrecy in government work and the meaning of true national security, to say nothing of whether the Institute for Defense Analyses should be allowed to build in Princeton, were debated Monday night, as planned, before Township Committee.

It was a standing-room audience. The discussion was generally ordered, although personal accusations brought tempers to the surface toward the end of the two-hour session.

IDA's contractor, Mahoney-Troast, received the necessary building permit January 30. Clearing of the Terhune Road site for IDA's building has already begun.

After Monday night's airing—Mayor Jay Bleiman didn't want it called a "debate"—Steve Slaby of the Citizens in Search of Peace said his group and the environmentally-oriented Concerned Township Citizens are still prepared to go to court to keep IDA out.

"We are reviewing our next step," Mr. Slaby said, "we are planning carefully because we want to do it properly." He invited other Princeton citizens to join the group in financial and moral support.

Rostrum. The two speakers invited by Mayor Bleiman to talk about secrecy and national security were Dr. Richard Falk, political scientist, and Dr. Marvin Goldberger, physicist. Both are on the Princeton University faculty. Dr. Falk was a prominent anti-Vietnam War spokesman and Dr. Goldberger formerly did work for the Communications Research Division (CRD) which is Princeton's IDA branch.

Dr. Falk told the audience he was reluctant to speak because the subject of IDA was divisive in the community, "but failure to speak is to say we don't care about the basic principles of ordered democracy," he said.

"There is no place in Princeton for government research conducted under secret auspices," he declared, adding that "the argument for secrecy has been consistently abused in the past ten years."

Genuine national security, he said, meant "openness, so our potential enemies can know what we are doing, and not arrive at decisions based on miscalculations."

The CRD-IDA "parent-child" relationship worried him, he said, because Washington-based IDA could decide "tomorrow" that some other kind of work should be done in Princeton.

If Township Committee had the will to do so, Dr. Falk charged, it could find the means to deny IDA location in the community. Mayor Bleiman and Committee have said they see no legal bar to IDA.

Dr. Goldberger told Committee and the audience he felt "even more" than Dr. Falk "the irrelevance of most secrecy," but he said secrecy isn't necessarily evil just because it has been mis-used. He said "a strong case" can be made for keeping secret the operational details of weaponry.

"Developing techniques to make secure the transportation of diplomatic and military messages and the related problem of trying to break the codes of others is the SOLE concern of CRD," he stated, and Mayor Bleiman asked him to repeat the statement.

The CRD works for the National Security Agency on classified jobs related to generating and breaking codes. "I believe what CRD does is good," Dr. Goldberger said, "and contributes to true national security. Everyone knows NSA isn't in the 'dirty tricks' business. And everyone knows IDA is far from pure."

Light Note. Laughs occurred now and then during the evening. Commenting on whether IDA might change the nature of the CRD's work, Dr. Goldberger said, "These people are mathematicians and virtually useless at anything else. They are not physicists."

The audience laughed. Dr. Goldberger is a physicist.

CRD? Legal. Replying to Dr. Falk, Mayor Bleiman conceded that "if the moral will were here, we would seek to restrain the CRD, but Committee is satisfied that CRD's work is OK, and it is our judgment that they have met all legal requirements to build here."

When Committeeman William Sutphin pointed that a local governing body's powers are subject to review, and that a Committee decision against CRD-IDA could be overturned by the courts, Dr. Falk retorted,

"I'd like to see Committee take the risk of having that decision over-turned."

A Princeton alumnus, Tom Carr, class of 1971, said, "I still don't understand what the CRD is really doing," and he reported that in recruiting pamphlets available on campuses, all IDA divisions except the CRD were explicit about their activities. "CRD is an extremely secretive organization," he warned. "If all they are doing is codes, why aren't they part of NSA?"

Richard Shaker, who in previous rounds in Township Hall has identified himself as an employee of IDA, said,

"Citizens have the proper means to exert control. I'd worry about the Congressman from this district who voted against the war powers bill."

Clarence diDonato, Princeton resident with a life-time history of anti-war activity, challenged Committee: "I'm disappointed in you people!" he shouted, "Why don't you do something to protect us? We don't want to demonstrate before the bulldozers!"

Temperers Rise. Speakers were even-tempered, if repetitious. But late in the evening the atmosphere changed when Robert Hosford, Terhune Road resident who has opposed IDA's construction on environmental grounds, said, "Have any of you on Committee any connection with the Federal government?"

"What are the implications of that question?" demanded Committee-member Ellen Peterson. "I have connections because I am an American citizen. This Committee has had the well-being of the community at heart and has not retreated behind legalisms. I hope our moral sensitivity is as acute as that of anyone here."

"I feel a bit of resentment at the implications of the question," said Committee member Barbara Smoyer, her voice trembling. "We have given no hint of our own personal feelings, which many of us have very deeply, but which we have subdued."

And Mr. Sutphin, "In the pay of the government! I pay TO the Federal government, and I pay more in taxes than the President." He said that in many New Jersey communities, favorable decisions depended on "whether you are a friend of the mayor. In Princeton, we believe in the equal protection of the law."

But it was Committeeman Abbot Low Moffat who exploded. Speaking rapidly and in scornful tones he told Mr. Hosford his question was "quite unnecessary: it would be illegal to serve if we had any other connections."

Citing his own opposition to involvement in Indochina going back to his post-World War II years in the Southeast Asia division of the State Department, Mr. Moffat said, "I detested the war and thought it morally wrong. But you don't abolish the Army because it has been misused, you go after those responsible. The logic of those opposed to IDA is—dead wrong. Code-breaking is essential."

He received heavy applause.

Siphoners Hit Fire Truck
The siphoning of 35 gallons of gas from a fire truck in the Chambers Street Firehouse nearly had serious consequences. The truck ran out of gas answering a general alarm Monday morning for a kitchen fire in a Poe Road home—"fortunately on the way back," said police Chief Michael Carnevale.
The theft took place between Friday and 12:50 Monday afternoon when it was discovered. Chief Carnevale also reported the siphoning of a car's tank last week while it was parked on University Place. "We've been averaging about two or three a week," he commented.
Township police charged two 17-year-old Borough youths with tampering with a motor vehicle after they were caught siphoning gas from a car parked in a Graduate School lot.

FIVE ARE FINED
In Township Court. Five Princeton area residents were fined last week by Judge Philip Carchman in Township traffic court.
Brett A. Orr, 17, 19 Bank Street, was fined $35 for leaving the scene of an accident and $20 for careless driving.
Paying fines of $20 each were Sabatino A. Russo 3d, 17, Cleveland Road, careless driving; Peter D. Browne, 19, 149 Carter road, and Thomas C. Perks, 63, 353 Cherry Hill Road, both stop-sign violations; and Robert C. Jones, 23, 81 Brickyard Road, Cranbury, no license in possession.

Three in Borough. Judge Carchman fined three Monday in Borough court.
Ingeborg Naess, 23, 15 Broadmead, paid $32 for speeding, and Zell D. Patinson, 51, 24 Turney Court, paid $20 for a red light infraction. For violating the Borough's snow removal ordinance, the Lutheran Church, 407 Nassau Street, was fined $5 and $5 court costs. Judge Carchman suspended the fine but ordered the church to pay the court costs.

STUDENT'S ROOM RIFLED
At Hun School. The room of Hun School student John Betts was entered and ransacked last week, Township police report.
Taken were a camera tripod and $25 in cash. Police said the theft took place in the morning while the victim was playing ping pong with other students. Young Betts told police that his door had been locked but there were no signs of forced entry.
Township juvenile officer Anthony Pinelli investigated.

TRUCK, CAR COLLIDE
At Quaker and 206. A passenger and a rider of a pick-up truck were injured Sunday afternoon when it was involved in a collision at Quaker Road and Route 206.
Terry Smith, 42, Monmouth Junction, a passenger, and Peter Glatz, 27, 144 Alexander Street, one of five persons riding in the rear, were treated for contusions. Mr. Smith also suffered a whiplash.
Keith K. Smith, 37, Monmouth Junction, driver of the truck, told police that as he pulled out of Quaker to turn left onto Route 206 his wheels lost traction on the icy surface and he was not able to negotiate the slight upgrade. His truck was hit by a car driven by William S. Richardson, 37, 27 Academy Street, Kingston.
Mr. Smith was ticketed for careless driving by Ptl. Mario Musso.

Saturday evening, Arthur F. Gallant, 53, 9 Erdman Avenue, skidded on icy Faculty Road into a guard rail fence.
He was admitted to Princeton Medical Center the next day for treatment of a fractured sternum which he sustained in the mishap.
Antoine M. Aklian, 33, Cranbury, was ticketed for driving a car with bald and hazardous tires after it

P.J.&B. May Soon Become a Legend

The demise of the P.J.&B. Railroad, rumored for nearly a quarter century, moved a step nearer reality last week with the recommendation by the U.S. Department of Transportation that the trackage be abandoned.
DOT said that 17 percent of the rail lines in New Jersey could be abandoned with no significant impact on freight shippers or passengers. Among that 17 percent is the three-mile stretch that takes commuters from Princeton to Princeton Junction and back—hence the name P.J.&B.

"No significant impact" apparently means that DOT feels that Princeton rail passengers could drive just as easily to Princeton Junction and the main line, as to the station on University Place. Princeton University officials, who have eyed the area of the railroad station for possible expansion uses, have often talked of a commuter bus service replacing the "Dinky," as the P.J.&B. is also known.

The Transportation Department recommendation said that four percent of the present rail lines in the Trenton area could be abandoned. Stretches of track considered excess include the line from Kingston to Monmouth Junction in Middlesex County; from Jamesburg to Trenton in Monmouth County, from New Egypt to Shrewsbury Road in Ocean County, and the Belvidere branch freight line from Trenton to Milford along the Delaware-Raritan Canal.

Four municipalities in this area were said to require continued rail service. They are Trenton, Windsor, Yardville and Robbinsville.

No More Specials. Congress ordered the report when it passed legislation to consolidate seven bankrupt railroads into one system. The report probably will play a role in the directions of the new United States Railway Association, USRA, which will plan and finance the new rail system over a two-year period.

Entire passenger trains years ago were diverted from the main line and down the P.J.&B. to deliver spectators to football games and other University events. In the area where parking lots are now, there was once sufficient trackage to allow a dozen or more specials to deliver thousands of football fans just a few hundred yards from Palmer Stadium. The last time a special train was ordered out of New York for Princeton was five or six years ago for a Big 3 football game. Fewer than 10 persons were on board skidded into the path of another car Saturday afternoon on a curve on University Place.

The second driver, Beverly S. Kessler, 23, 418-C Devereaux was treated at the Medical Center for facial contusions; her passenger, Eileen Hochberg, 23, of Flushing, for contusions of the knee.

The two cars—both small foreign models—had to be towed away. Sgt. John J. Bellow investigated.

SIX ARE NOMINATED
As Hospital Trustees. Six area residents have been nominated to serve on The Princeton Medical Center Board of Trustees.
They include William A. Schreyer and Dr. A. D. Sheeran, incumbents; new nominees C. Barnwell Straut, Eugene P. Gillespie and Michael Bongiovanni, all of Princeton, and Robert W. Stahl, Cranbury.

Elected last year to fill an unexpired term. Mr. Schreyer, 144 Library Place, is chairman of the board of Merrill Lynch Government Securities, Inc., New York. Dr. Sheeran, 177 Parkside Drive, has been a member of The Center's Department of Medicine since 1953 and is completing his first three-year term as a trustee.

He and his family reside at 2 Southbury Lane, Cranbury.

Election of six trustees will highlight the annual meeting of The Medical Center, scheduled for 8 p.m., Monday, February 25, in the general meeting rooms of The Center's Princeton Hospital Unit, 253 Witherspoon Street.

SUPPORT

On Environmental Grounds. Two environmental groups this week supported the Township in municipal action granting a building permit to the Institute for Defense Analyses.

The Township's Environmental Commission, which has been concerned about disruption of land if the IDA building were constructed, now says, "We are convinced that, on the basis of the current plans, there is no valid reason that the building should not be built."

The Commission promises "to observe the project in order to see that all (environmental) requirements are met."

The Friends of the Princeton Environment, Inc., in a letter to Township Committee and the Planning Board, state, "we cannot agree with recent public statements that the Township has been unsympathetic or unresponsive to property-owners plagued by Harry's Brook. Some of these property-owners have protested IDA on drainage grounds.

Committee and Board, have also "been more than generous in giving new BUSY BEES: Mrs. Peter C. Budd, left, and Mrs. Thomas J. Raser, co-chairmen of the 21st annual Hospital Fete, announce that plans for this year's fund-raising event for the Princeton Medical Center are well underway. The theme this year is "A Honey of a Fete," and the planners hope plenty of worker bees join the hive in time for the June 1 Fete.

hearings on the IDA question."

The Friends urge municipal officials to use run-off data already assembled by Killiam Associates, the firm hired to study flooding problems, to determine whether the new and proposed retention basins on IDA land will be adequate.

'74 FETE A HONEY

Energy No Problem. The 21st annual Hospital Fete already is in the planning stage. The co-chairmen, Mrs. Peter C. Budd and Mrs. Thomas J. Raser, anticipate no problems in harnessing the energies of hundreds of volunteer workers expected to participate.

At the January 21 kick-off meeting for the event, the theme of which will be "A Honey of a Fete," more than half of the Activities Chairmen announced that their groups had already begun work. The publicity committee, no less enthusiastic, submitted the following report:

Even the theme for the June 1 Fete is bursting with verve and industry. In honor of "A Honey of a Fete," the Princeton area will soon be buzzing with bees ahead of season. A flash of busy-black and sun-dancing yellow, the mascot of '74, who is obviously a Worker Bee, heads toward the hive on the publicity poster designed for the Fete. Interlocked hexagons of the honey-comb symbolize the legendary co-operation of all Fete workers which brings a swarm of more than 30,000 eager participants annually to the Fete Grounds on Washington Road, for the benefit of the Medical Center at Princeton.

Mrs. Budd and Mrs. Raser announced the dedication of "A Honey of a Fete" to the busy Volunteers, recognizing thereby that the secret of Fete success is People—highly motivated, skilled, thriving on challenge. The Fete offers more than 60 separate attractions, all involving chairmen, committees, and donors. In the Medical Center alone, 858 Volunteers have given more than 42,000 in-service hours at the Hospital, Merwick and Princeton House in 1972.

The Fete Co-Chairmen stress that they plan to make the most of area resources. For example, the program will be printed entirely on recycled paper. "Why, we're even recycled chairmen from previous years," they realized in a lighter moment. Mrs. Graham Brush, President of the Auxiliary—the Medical Center at Princeton, gave a special welcome to the goodly number of new faces at the Kick-off Meeting, noting that it is they who bring welcome renewal of ideas and energy to the event.

In order to assist all who wish to donate time, talent, grandmother's Secretary, home-grown herbs and home-baked feasts, un-used wedding-presents, etc., Mrs. Budd and Mrs. Raser offer their telephones as "Central contribution Contacts." They will accept pledges of donations at

AMNESTY UNIT FORMED
In Princeton. Amnesty International, a non-political, non-governmental, non-sectarian group whose purpose, it says, is to conduct an international campaign against political repression, has formed a Princeton group. The new group, one of 1,000 local organizations scattered throughout the world, met Wednesday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Wood, 259 Mount Lucas Road. Those wishing to join the group or to make a contribution should contact Jeannette Zehnder, 162 Von Neumann Drive. At its headquarters in London, Amnesty compiles information on political prisoners in all parts of the world. It sends representatives to intercede with government officials on behalf of "prisoners of conscience," those it determines to be "imprisoned, detained, restricted, or otherwise subjected to physical coercion or restriction by reason of their conscientiously held beliefs, or by reason of their ethnic origin, color, or language, provided they have not used or advocated violence."

the organization is carried out by local groups. Each group adopts three prisoners of conscience, one each from the communist, non-communist, and non-aligned nations. The members inform themselves about the political and legal situation in which their adopted prisoners were arrested, and about their present condition.

Why Library Needs Rug
A new rug is in the new Borough budget for the Princeton Public Library. The old one, not yet a rag rug but almost, has been tramped on by feet young and old since the library was opened in the winter of '66.

Friends of the Princeton Public Library did a count last Saturday and found that 1,644 people wore down the rug during the day, circulating 2,087 books, records, prints or what have you. That circulating figure works out to four books a minute, calculates librarian Robert Staples.

Figures compare with 1,392 people who went to the library the first February Saturday last year. They circulated 1,948 books.

This means that wear and tear on the warp and woof is on the up and up.

BUSINESS

OBJECTIVES LISTED

For Chamber of Commerce. At the beginning of each year the Greater Princeton Chamber of Commerce announces a work program and assesses its objectives and goals for the new year. Chamber President James T. Robson has issued the following statement:

"Support continues to be expressed for consolidation. A joint Borough-Township study committee has been established. The Chamber will monitor that committee and its report.

"Completion of the Master Plan for Princeton is anticipated. The Chamber Master Plan and Housing Committee will be directly involved with the results of this report."

"A parking garage for the Central Business District of Princeton is an objective the Chamber strongly recommends. Completion of this project is a priority. The Chamber stands ready to offer support and assistance in solving problems posed by the latest Federal EPA regulations.

"Civic objectives include maintaining the educational programs and seminars of the Princeton Chamber. These programs are aimed at increasing the awareness and understanding of business principles by not only the business people but by the youth of our community who are so important to tomorrow's business."

"The Chamber also has a significant interest in enhancing the beauty and charm of our town. Assistance will be provided to interested developers in obtaining key facts about the area. A library of this information will be maintained in the Chamber Office."

BUSINESS STORE MOVES
To 104 Nassau. Center Business Machines last week completed its move from the Princeton Shopping Center to 104 Nassau Street, former home of Quality Market, and Gordon Popper, the proprietor, couldn't be happier.

"This is a great location," he said. "There is no problem with parking. At any time we can look out our window and see at least two empty spaces. At the most you just have to drive once around the block."

Mr. Popper, along with his wife, Linda, a noted Princeton artist, sell and repair typewriters, adding machines, multipliers and electronic calculators. They also sell several lines of typewriter tables and chairs; ribbons; paper tapes; typewriter pads and covers; and Panasonic desk lamps and pencil sharpeners.

For the past two and a half years the Poppers have been located at the Princeton Shopping Center, which is why they called their store Center Business Machines. Would they change the name now that they are located on Nassau Street?

"Oh no," said Mr. Popper. "Before we were located at the Shopping Center. Now we are located in the center of Princeton. It's still Center Business Machines."

Earlier Closing. The old store was open from 9:30 to 5:30, Mr. Popper said, but at the new location the closing time will probably be 5 Monday through Saturday. "Most of our business at the Shopping Center came late in the day," he said. "But here it starts much earlier and by 4 it is pretty quiet. I don't know why that is."

Mr Popper, who is the dealer for Smith-Corona,

Olympia and Adler typewriters, does not like to quote prices in the newspaper. "Just say we have very attractive prices and a very convenient location," he said.

CHIEF OFFICERS NAMED

By Princeton Savings. J. Burwell Harrison, President and Resident Trustee of the Tenacre Foundation, has been elected Chairman of the Board of Princeton Savings and Loan Association, and Attorney Ralph S. Mason of the Princeton law firm of Mason, Griffin & Pierson, has been elected Vice-Chairman.

Mr. Harrison, a Princetonian for 35 years, first became associated with Princeton Savings in 1964, when he joined the Board of Directors. An active supporter of civic organizations, he served several terms on the YMCA Board of Trustees and is a member of the Board of Trustees of the United Fund. A past President of the Princeton Rotary Club, he was recently named an H. Paul Harris Fellow.

Mr. Mason, a former Mayor of Princeton Township, is President of the Princeton Medical Center, and Chairman of the Board of Trustees of the YMCA. He also serves as a member of the National Board and Executive Board of the YMCA. Mr. Mason has been a member of the Princeton Savings' Board since 1963.

Princeton Savings and Loan Association, organized as a mutual institution in 1917, and founded to foster the principles of thrift and home ownership, reported total assets of $47,575,730 as of the end of 1973. Located at 132 Nassau Street, Princeton, the

ASSETS AT $6 MILLION

In Bank's 1st Year Here. Ralph L. Stout, President of New Jersey National Bank of Princeton, has reported that the bank has surpassed predictions and reached $6,000,000 total assets, as it marks its first anniversary.

"We're so pleased with the reception that Princeton has given us in the year that we've been here, that we put together a little anniversary celebration as a 'thank you'," he said. The celebration features a country club bag which can be obtained for a nominal cost along with opening of a $50 account or deposit in an existing account. The Bank is also giving away ball point pens and balloons.

Mr. Stout credits the rapid accumulation of patrons and assets to "our competitive attitude with new and better services such as No-charge Checking, and the fact that we were the first bank in town to raise interest rates on all savings plans when Government regulations changed. We pay the highest interest rates the law allows a commercial bank to pay and our 7 1/4 percent certificate of deposit is a best seller."

"Mortgage money is available," he continued, "and with our personalized service a consumer loan can be approved in two hours. Staying the size we are and having the backing of a $700,000,000 corporation, New Jersey National Corporation, Continued on next page

If you like the idea of having your cake and eating it too, the new 2.0-liter Porsche 914 should be very appealing.

Not only does this superbly engineered sports car get an incredible 29 miles to the gallon, but if you figure in the fuel tank capacity (16.4 gallons) you could conceivably travel from New York to Washington and back on one tank of gas!

All this economy while you're driving in style in one of the finest handling cars ever designed.

With its mid-engine balance and rack-and-pinion steering, the Porsche 914 is renowned for its cornering ability and for hugging the road.

coupled to a 5-speed gearbox, even 50 miles an hour can't take the fun out of driving.

SKETCHBOOK OFFERED

At Nassau Savings. Walter Foster, President of Nassau Savings & Loan, has announced that the Association is celebrating February, Presidents' Month, with a special historical promotion.

Visitors will receive a copy of "Founding Fathers Sketchbook" containing biographies of the 56 signers of the Declaration of Independence. Mr. Foster said that the booklet is intended to give readers a greater awareness of the backgrounds of America's founding fathers. Teachers will find it a useful tool in classroom work, he said, while adults will enjoy reading the various biographies as a refresher and as an introduction to the backgrounds of some of our lesser-known historical personalities.

Mr. Foster invites everyone to visit the Association during February to participate in the program. The promotion will end Thursday, February 28. Nassau's two offices are located at 194 Nassau Street, and 44 Hightstown Road, Princeton Junction.

In Real Estate Investments. "Investments in Real Estate" will be the topic of a four-session seminar to be conducted at the YMCA on Monday, February 11 and 25, March 4, and March 11 from 8 to 10 each night.

The latest techniques in property analysis are taught to enable the student to project property performance into the future. Practical problems using local properties, along with students' properties, will be analyzed for homework and discussed in class. The instructor is Edwin Goldberg of Fox & Lazlo. The course is open to Y members and non-members at a fee.

The newest bank in Princeton is now one.

Thanks to you, New Jersey National Bank of Princeton got to its feet in just one year without ever having to go through the crawling stage. This is one baby that has come a long way. Like most young ones, we did knock a few things over here and there: the checking account service barrier was one; our No-Charge Checking is still the best one in town. We were first to increase interest rates on all savings plans, offer you statement savings if you prefer, and our 7 1/4 % income growth savings certificate is a best-seller.

But we are just one. And one-year-olds have birthday parties where the guests are supposed to come away with presents. While they last, during our birthday celebration from February 2 through 9, we're giving away favors. And we're making a special club bag available, too.

News Of The CHURCHES

DON'T WORSHIP HERE

Try Another Church. As strange as it may sound, the Rev. Kenneth S. Dannenhauer, pastor of Christ Congregation, is urging—telling, in fact—his regular worshippers not to worship at Christ Congregation either this Sunday or next.

Instead, he is encouraging them to attend services at other churches of different denominations. The project is designed to expand the awareness of Christ Congregation members toward other religious activities in the community.

Mr. Dannenhauer reported a helpful experience when he was granted time to visit a Cambridge, Mass., church last fall. Now the Deacons have arranged this program to enable the entire congregation to do likewise.

The normal Sunday morning schedule has been rearranged for these two weeks so that the learning experiences which normally follow worship will begin at 10 in order for people to attend 11 o'clock services elsewhere.

Coffee and sandwiches will be served at noon back in Christ Congregation for constituents to share their experiences in other churches.

BULLETIN NOTES

The senior citizens' drop in center at the Princeton United Methodist Church is holding a Valentine's Day party Wednesday from 1 to 3. All senior citizens are invited to attend. For transportation call the church office at 924-2613 by Tuesday.

The "Broken Consort," a Renaissance and Baroque instrumental and singing group, will present an evening of songs and dances Friday at 8 at All Saints' Church. One of the singers will be Mory Kemp, a teacher at Stuart Country Day School.

Dr. Odette Jankowitsch, a senior fellow at the New York University School of International Relations, will be the speaker at the 10 o'clock service this Sunday in the Unitarian Church of Princeton. Her topic will be the political and economic directions of the United Nations.

A senior choir luncheon will be held Sunday from 1 to 3 at the Mount Pisgah A. M. E. Church, Witherspoon and Maclean Streets. Donation is $2.25 for adults and $1.25 for children under 12.

Dr. Karlfried Froehlich, Associate Professor of Church History at the Princeton Theological Seminary, will speak at St. Paul's Lutheran Church, One Mile Road, East Windsor, at 9:30 a.m. Sunday. His topic will be "Christian Mysticism." The lecture will open the church's eight-week adult education program called "Frontiers of Christian Thought."

Women are invited to this Sunday's meeting of the Men's Breakfast Club of the Lawrenceville Presbyterian Church. Causing the departure from tradition is Sylvia Ohanesian, Dean for Residential Life and Associate Dean of Students at Rider College, who will speak on the topic, "What Do Women Want?" The breakfast starts at 8:30 in the Faculty Dining Room of Rider College. Reservations may be made by calling the church office, 896-1212, by noon Thursday.

The Rev. Frederick Schott, new pastor of the Prince of Peace Lutheran Church, is now conducting worship services at 9:30 a.m. in the Maurice Hawk School on Clarksville Road. Sunday school is held at 10:30 with Ross Wilbur, superintendent. At that time also an adult discussion group is held under the direction of the Rev. Norm Nuding.

The Rev. Dr. William O. Fennell, Principal of Emmanuel College, Toronto, will deliver the annual Annie Kinkead Warfield lecture series at Princeton Theological Seminary Monday through Thursday of next week. The general topic will be "God's Intention for Man: Essays in Christian Anthropology." They will be given in Miller Chapel, at 7:45 each night, and at 1:20 Tuesday and Thursday.

Obituaries

Harry A. Farr II, 75, owner of the former Farr Hardware Store, long a Princeton institution, and a lifelong Princeton resident until his retirement three years ago, died February 5 in Florida. A member of a distinguished New Jersey family, Mr. Farr rejected a career in civil engineering in the mid-1920s to take over Farr the family business during his father's illness. The Farr family had first become involved in the hardware line in 1886 and the company was incorporated in 1902 as Farr Hardware.

The firm was a direct descendant of a trading center established in 1744 on the triangle formed by present-day Mercer and Nassau streets. It remained on the Princeton business scene at 138 Nassau until February 1, 1971.

As the hardware business expanded, Mr. Farr became involved in many facets of the community. He was for 12 years a member of the Borough Board of Education when the Board first had to face up to the problems of integration, the high school having been integrated in 1946.

The Board devised the famous "Princeton Plan" whereby kindergarten and elementary grades would attend Nassau Street School and all other grades the Quarry Street School. The plan was to attract attention in urban areas in other parts of the country in the late 1950s.

Mr. Farr also was a member of the Borough Planning and Zoning Boards and the Princeton Housing Authority. He was active in Rotary and interested in the YMCA and church programs. As a member of Council, he headed the Public Safety Committee and was Police Commissioner.

He is survived by his wife, Miriam Williams Farr; three stepsons, George Tidey of Richmond, Va., Clayton Tidey of Sacramento, Calif., and James Tidey of Chicago, Ill.; a daughter Mrs. Lee Ridall, Rowayton, Conn.; a sister, Mrs. Helen Robertson of Princeton and 12 grandchildren.

A burial Office will be offered Friday morning at 11 at Trinity Episcopal Church. Arrangements are under direction of the Mather Funeral Home.

Joseph Cataldo, 77, of 22 North Greenwood Avenue, Hopewell, died February 4 at Hunterdon Medical Center. He was a retired barber.

A native of Italy, he had lived in Hopewell for 40 years. He was a member of the Hopewell Fire Department.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Freida LaPlaca Cataldo; two daughters, Antoinette Cataldo of New York and Mary Ann Browning of Hopewell; one

SECOND TRY THE SAME

Ewing Defeats PHS, 71-54. Off its big win over Notre Dame Friday, Princeton High School followers were pointing to Tuesday's return match with Ewing High School Tuesday.

Revenge wasn't in the cards for the Little Tigers. Ewing got an outstanding performance from its all-area center Hollis Copeland to defeat PHS even more decisively the second time, 71-54. Copeland hit on 15 of 21 shots and ended with 34 points.

Bobby King, who fouled out in the third quarter was high for PHS with 19. The two teams battled evenly in the first quarter, but PHS fell behind by 12 at the half. The Little Tigers managed to close within six in the third period but that was as far as they got, dropping their sixth of the season. They have won nine.

PHS HAS HAMMERLOCK

On County Mat Title. Princeton High School's wrestling team strengthened its hold on the Mercer County brother, Angelo of Long Island; and two sisters, Mrs. Rose DeCosti and Mrs. Phyllis Filingeri, both of New York.

A mass will be celebrated Thursday at 10 a.m. in St. Alphonsus Church, Hopewell. Interment will be in Highland Cemetery.

James (Bing) Dennen, 60, of 120 Longview Drive, died February 2 at his home.

Born and raised in Princeton, he was a professional horseman and competed in many shows prior to entering the military in 1942. During the war he was awarded a medal for bravery for saving a child from drowning.

Later he was employed for 10 years by Princeton University's Department of Dormitories and Food Services.

Surviving are a sister, Mrs. Robert Leadley of Denver, Colo., and several nieces, nephews and cousins.

Mrs. Ethel M. Rodweller, 74, of 8 Chestnut Street, died February 3 in the Princeton Medical Center.

The widow of Elmer J. Rodweller, she lived all her life in Princeton.

Survivors include two sons, William E. and Raymond J. of Princeton; nine grandchildren; and three great-grandchildren.

using January 1, 1973, has just been superceded. The new guideline sets January 1, 1972 as the key date. What will this mean? Mr. Bennett hasn't even seen the new order.

"Barring unforeseen cold weather and the need to plow snow off sidewalks and parking lots," he says, "I'm probably going to make it through February."

With two school holidays—February 15 and 18—and a short month, it looks good. But March is long, with no school holidays and, says Mr. Bennett, "It's going to be hairy."

But he prefers to take a bright look at the future.

"We expected a severe fuel shortage," he said, "and it seems to have just evaporated. Maybe the gasoline shortage will evaporate, too."

MAILBOX

Suggestions on Gas Shortage.
To the Editor of Town Topics:
Following is the text of a letter sent to Governor Brendan T. Byrne:

The membership of the Princeton Personnel Association, representing 50 companies which employ over 20,000 persons in the Princeton area, wishes to express its growing concern regarding the availability of and pumping hours for gasoline.

The Princeton area is extremely deficient in public transportation and so our employees must depend on private means. We have individually as companies and united as an organization encouraged and effectively promoted car pooling. However pool vehicles face the same fuel difficulty as individual travelers.

We urge that strong representation be made in the legislature and through the Governor's office federally to relieve the situation as we fear that our operations and the employment of these many persons may be seriously impeded by the present chaotic conditions. Efficiency of employees is already impaired, and serious continuing deterioration is feared.

We urge and recommend the following steps be taken immediately:

1. Investigate and determine if New Jersey is receiving a fair fuel allocation in keeping with past usage and population growth.
2. Investigate and determine if fuel is being equitably distributed within the State.
3. Legislate fuel pumping hours on a State-wide basis, considering the hours during which workers must work i.e. normally 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Require that open hours be conspicuously posted.
4. Legislate the amount of fuel to be pumped to provide reasonable minimums for commuting needs and maximums to limit hoarding.

LESLIE E. SCHULTZ
President, Princeton Personnel Association

Our Dog Was Killed....

To the Editor of Town Topics:
On Sunday, January 27, our dog ran away and did not return. The next day, we learned from the police that a dog matching his description had been hit by a car that Sunday evening at about 6 o'clock on Nassau Street near Davidson's and had died shortly after the accident. Somehow the dog's identification tags were lost in the accident, so we were never notified.

We have a few reasons for writing this letter. First of all, we understand that dogs do dart out in front of cars on occasion, and it may be impossible to avoid hitting them. However, the fact that whoever hit our dog did not even stop to see if he could help the injured animal suggests that they did not try to avoid hitting him in the first place. The callousness and inhumanity of such an act is shameful, and I suppose, the only punishment in such a case is the guilty conscience that the driver of that car hopefully has to live with.

Next, it is our understanding that an unidentified animal found dead is immediately incinerated. We understand the necessity for this to some extent. But what about our case? Our dog had an identification tag, a borough license and a vaccination tag, which he was never without. Somehow the tags were lost. Wouldn't it be only proper to hold the dog for 24 hours in the event that he did belong to someone? That way we could have identified him and known for sure that it was he. Or supposing the dog had bitten someone before it was killed. Shouldn't an animal be held for an autopsy, to make sure it wasn't rabid?

Lastly, we know from the police that a young boy saw the accident, pulled the dog off the road and called the police while the animal was still alive. We don't know who the child was. We would like to say thank you for having the kindness that the driver of the car lacked, and for trying to help our dog.

If you or your parents are reading this, we'd like to know who you are - so that we can thank you in person, so that perhaps you can positively identify a picture of the dog and maybe tell us if you know what happened to his lags. What you did means a lot to us, and we are thankful for it.

We realize that some people may read this and respond with the thought that dogs should not be running loose, that dog owners should watch their dogs more carefully. To those people we would like to point out that dogs that get hit by cars are more often than not dogs who do not roam free but who get away once or twice by accident.

Dogs that are used to running free all the time usually know how to avoid cars. Pets who get away by accident, such as our dog, do not. We hope that by making people aware of all of the above, incidents like this can be avoided in the future.

"A Sorry Record"

To the Editor of Town Topics: In a story in Town Topics, (January 17) I note with interest the following statistics concerning the installation of officers for 1974 of the West Windsor First Aid Squad:

Of 11 officers, 3 are women, one of whom is "head driver"; Of 5 Trustees, 2 are women; Of 6 delegates to the New Jersey First Aid Council, 2 are women;

Finally, the Sergeant-at-arms and chaplain are women.

The sorry record of the Princeton First Aid and Rescue Squad in its ban on women stands out in glaring contrast.

In its latest appeal to our community for financial support, the Princeton Squad in its brochure says "right now the urgent need is money."

IDA is Welcome Here

To the Editor of Town Topics: Now that the Princeton Regional Planning Board has rendered its decision permitting the construction of the new facilities for the Institute for Defense Analyses, we hope the community will allow IDA to continue to pursue its objectives in a less heated climate. The decision to keep IDA here was an important one for IDA and for Princeton, for we feel our community's long tradition of excellence as a research center arose from our support for the right—and indeed the desirability of such groups to make their home here.

For a period of 14 years IDA has been in Princeton, unobtrusively pursuing its research objectives on the Princeton University Campus. When students actively protested its present location, they were, it would seem, objecting to the appropriateness of a defense-oriented research organization being located on the grounds of a great educational institution.

Now that IDA has found a new site off the campus, within the Township, we feel it should be a welcomed member of the research community. It should not be forgotten that IDA has attracted many talented people here, and has had a considerable impact on the economic health of the area.

Money to pay for 24 hour operations and equipment. Help us help you by making a fair share contribution now."

If the need for money is so imperative, I wonder how in good conscience the Squad can spend the public's money on attorney's fees to fight the admission of one woman, Anna Lewis, to the Squad.

Do those who contribute to the Squad really want their money wasted in this manner?

"Crosstown 62" Most Useful. To the Editor of Town Topics: This is a letter of gratitude to all the good people of Princeton who have made "Crosstown 62" possible for senior citizens.

For a time the senior citizens have suffered the plight of all minority groups, though for different reasons. Their plight comes from the fact that life has taken its toll on them in their declining years, and now in a very weakened condition, due to recurring illnesses, deterioration, loss of dear ones, or all three in many instances, they are unable to answer their needs, but must, somehow, because life must go on, struggle with pain, and heartache.

This God-given "Crosstown 62" has come to all the people 62 or over here in Princeton to help them to at least cope with their difficulties in some measure.

By phoning 924-6176, they are provided with transportation from their door to doctors, dentists, hospitals, shopping and library for the price of 25 cents return. They are called for in a fine, comfortable station wagon driven by solicitous, very courteous drivers who call at a time specified and bring you back home. The hours are 9 to 3.

I'm writing this letter because I want more of our senior citizens to avail themselves of this service and also, because I want this service to be recognized for what it is and hopefully have it continue for a long time.

ALLEN'S : WE DIDN'T INVENT LOVE — FLOWERS : WE JUST HELP IT ALONG!

She's expecting SOMETHING fella! You know how the fair sex feels about St. Valentine's Day. Quite naturally we'd like to help Cupid along... whether it be one of our FAMOUS DOLLAR SPECIALS or one of our EQUALLY FAMOUS FLORAL ARRANGEMENTS. Valentine's Day is Thursday, February 14 — but we're planning a Gala here for a full week leading up to it.

In this era of the Liberated Women, we've planned on some Floral Valentines for a gal to to give her fella too! Whether you are Miss, Mrs., or Ms. — remember — a man could get plenty turned on by his "Honey" tapping him on the shoulder and saying, "Hi, Guy! Happy Valentine!" A boutonniere and a hug could do wonders.

And then, we have candy, too! Not just any ol' candy, either, but Famous BIRNN Candy. The fact that we want to carry Mr. Birnn's Fine Candy ought to tell you something about him. AND, the fact that he will let us, ought to tell you something about us.

This winter has been rather unspectacular so far. So, if you're tired of it, revive that sagging spirit with a visit to your Friendly Ol' Florist over here in Hopewell. We're knee-deep in Spring Flowers and pretty salesgirls..and believe me, it's pretty tough laboring under conditions like these... but then, it sure beats working for a living!

"The Passionate Book Collector," A True Tale

"This strange passion," is the way Howard Behrman, with a quiet smile, describes his joy in collecting fine, rare books.

Dr. Behrman, a New York dermatologist who has had a home in Princeton since June, owns about 500 rare volumes, mostly by great American writers. His collection includes Thoreau in depth, first editions of Herman Melville—and a rare "Tarzan of the Apes" in "wrappers" (paperback).

One of his delights is the manuscript ("I'm not a manuscript collector, but who could resist?") of a 12-chapter tale called "Father Bombo's Pilgrimage to Mecca." It was written in 1770 on the campus of a little college in Princeton by a pair of undergraduates who were later to become important writers in the history of the new United States—Philip Freneau and Hugh Henry Brackenridge. The manuscript, now on view in Princeton University's Firestone Library, is regarded by scholars as the first American novel.

It surfaced about 10 years ago at a country auction in Kentucky and was acquired by a local book dealer. When Firestone tried to buy it, the price began to jump and after long years, it was finally offered at auction in New York and Dr. Behrman bought it. "Father Bombo" is now back home, on the campus where he was born.

Bibliophile. A man of urbanity and quiet warmth, Dr. Behrman has always loved and read books. He began collecting about 25 years ago "all over the lot," starting with things he'd enjoyed as a boy, like "Robinson Crusoe" and "Pickwick Papers."

"I have a lovely 'Pickwick' given by Dickens to his doctor," and he adds somewhat impishly, "I love that idea...when an author gives you his own book, with an inscription to you, his doctor!"

Rather diffidently, with understated pride, he tells about the books presented to him by Mrs. Jacqueline Onassis. Dr. Behrman has served the Kennedy family professionally as a dermatologist and he has several books gratefully presented by President Kennedy's widow.

"See this inscription," and he turns to the inch-thick catalogue of his collection (the books themselves are in the Behrmans' New York home). "It's in 'As We Remember Joe,' John F. Kennedy's tribute to his brother who was lost in World War II."

The inscription reads "To Howard Behrman: this little book means a great deal to Jack—it is really a keystone to him—I am delighted that it will be in your collection."

This volume is rarer than Kennedy's "Why England Slept," his first book, which Dr. Behrman also has in its first edition. He also has presentation copies of BOOK MAN: Howard Behrman's Princeton study has books on the shelves yes. But not the 500 rare volumes in the Behrman collection of American writers. Dr. Behrman, a dermatologist, is actually a writer, himself, and has published six books and hundreds of articles on his medical specialty.

"Profiles in Courage" and a collection of Kennedy speeches.

Focus Sharpened. Although Dr. Behrman was happy with his Dickens and his Swift, he suddenly realized, when he encountered the world of William Caxton, whose books were the first printed in English, and of Shakespeare's Folios, that he could never have a definitive collection if he included English literature.

"So I decided to limit myself to American literature."

But the collector sometimes can't resist collecting outside his field: Dr. Behrman has a signed James Joyce "Ulysses," one of the first hundred in the first edition of 1,000 copies. It is in superb condition. And a rare Joyce pamphlet containing his essay, "The Day of the Rabbblement."

"Knowing that I couldn't get all of every writer, I've tried for three things: a first book, always rather hard to find because they are printed in small editions; the best-known, and the scarcest. Sometimes all three, or perhaps two, are in one book. Stephen Crane's "Maggie" and Robert Frost's "A Boy's Will" are both first and scarcest—yes, I have both."

Paperbacks? Yes. "I have another passion—I love books issued in what collectors call 'wrappers'—paperbacks, really."

The rarity here is a complete set of the 20 "Salmagundi" papers by Washington Irving, gossip sheets with juicy tidbits about old Dutch society in New York.

Only five or six complete sets, in wrappers, are in existence and Dr. Behrman's set is the only complete one ever sold at auction. It is probably the rarest item in the Behrman Collection, other than the "Bombo" manuscript.

"Prize Tale," in wrappers, was written by Harriet Beecher before she became Mrs. Stowe, and 18 years before "Uncle Tom's Cabin." Young Thomas Wolfe, as a senior at the University of North Carolina, in 1919, wrote a pamphlet on, of all things, "The Crisis in Industry." Most "Tarzan" copies are cloth-bound. Dr. Behrman thinks his copy, in wrappers, may be the only one.

Who's He? "Did you ever hear of Tom Graham?" the collector asks with a teasing smile. "Well, he wrote 'Hike and the Aeroplane' and it was published in 1912. Teen-agers read it to death! Only 1,000 copies were printed. The name, of course, was a pen-name. The author was Sinclair Lewis, and this was his first book—eight years before 'Main Street'."

"Lewis admitted later that he'd written the book. 'You're damned right I wrote it' he said adding, 'it's pretty terrible.'"

Lewis, Faulkner and Hemingway are the most contemporary of Dr. Behrman's collection: "I sort of ended with the 1940s" he says.

"You know, to a rare book collector there are only two Hemingways and yes, I do have them: 'Three Stories and Ten Poems' and 'in our time', Hemingway's first book, from 1924 and mind you use lower case in the title!"

Condition is vital to a serious collector—a just-off-the-press quality. With a smile, Dr. Behrman points out,

"This presents a problem with some books. You'll never find a first edition of 'The Wonderful Wizard of Oz' in great condition because children read the books and thumbed them. But I do have one that's relatively fine."

Perfection? The finest book can always yield to one that's finer still; Dr. Behrman has bought half a dozen copies of the same book, trading up each time.

"You think you have The Perfect Copy and some other collector sniffs, well, your end-paper colors are wrong. I have a 'Moby Dick' for example, with the all-important salmon colored end-papers. Later copies have other colors."

Collectors like Dr. Behrman learn about new finds through book dealers. Sadly, the doctor notes, many of the most exciting books are gone forever into various libraries. That's what happens when a collector leaves his books to a library. If the collection is sold by the family, it becomes dispersed to enrich the lives of other collectors.

What will happen to the Behrman collection?

"It will probably," the collector smiles gently, "Go to a library."

News Of The THEATRES

"TWELFTH NIGHT"
On Valentine's Day, "Twelfth Night" will not open on twelfth night, which (January 6), the world being what it is, but on Valentine's Day instead, which is probably better. Shakespeare's comedy is next in McCarter's repertory series and it will bow, probably with a flourish, next Thursday at 7:30 p.m. It will run through February 24.

In this production, the Malvolio will be I.M. Hobson, who has been receiving top notices during the repertory season. Clarence Felder, a veteran on McCarter's stage, will be Sir Toby Belch. McCarter's Artistic Director, Louis Criss, is directing.

Lowell Detweiler has designed set and costumes. Original incidental music, using traditional Shakespearean tunes, has been composed by Robert Cohen and the music director is Tobias Haller.

"NO, NO, NANETTE"

AT PDS. The winter musical at Princeton Day School will be the 1925-1971 favorite, "No, No, Nanette." The Drama Club and music department have scheduled a production for Friday and Saturday, February 22 and 23 at 8:30 p.m. and Sunday, February 24, at 2:30, all in the PDS theatre.

Herbert McAneny is directing, with musical direction by Frank Jacobson and choreography by Lucy Graves. This is the score with "Tea for Two" and "I Want to be Happy."

ON TOUR

Popsiklers. Expanding their horizons through a grant from the New Jersey State Council on the Arts, the Popsiklers Players will travel from Princeton to Lawrenceville next week, performing in Ben Franklin and Slackwood Elementary Schools on Monday at 10 a.m. (B. Franklin) and 1:30 (Slackwood).

The Players will do 100 shows, free of charge, for New Jersey children. An actor's workshop goes along with the show, giving their audience a chance to learn about theatre technique and practice it a little.

FROM AFRICA

To the Stage. African folk tales, with suns and moons, giant water creatures, dragons and even spiders, will be acted out by young students in Creative Theatre Unlimited in three performances over the next weeks.

Next Wednesday, February 13, the plays will be presented at the Princeton Public Library at 7 p.m. On Saturday, February 23 at 2 p.m., the theatre will be Trinity Church and on Saturday, March 2, at 2 p.m. the performances will be in South Brunswick.

The plays show how, in African folk lore, the sun and moon came to be. There are creatures great and small, like the chicken, peacock and the ant, and folk creatures from the imagination.

WRITING A PLAY?

Contest is Open. Street Theatre's annual playwrighting contest has an April 26 deadline, just about enough time to let you burnish that second act. Scripts should be sent to Street Theatre, in care of Debbie Bellow, 36 Stanley Avenue, Princeton. Length and subject matter is up to you, but the winning plays will be given in summertime outdoors on a mobile stage.

Three plays were chosen last year, and prizes of $30, $25 and $20 were distributed. Ms. Bellow, a Rider College student, won first prize with her "Penguin Dust." Second prize went to Princeton High School senior Richard Carlin for "A Play in Progress" and third prize to Princeton High freshman James Beckerman for "42nd Street Aggravation."

CINEMA NIGHT

Experimental Films. McCarter's annual evening of experimental, independent and avant-garde cinema, will be next Monday at 8 p.m. The program, for which tickets are available in advance at the box office, will include works by thirteen different film makers.

"Miracle Knife, Miracle Dish" and "3.1416" are the titles of two brief moments of comic lunacy by Jan Welt and Jeff Greenfield. "Solo" is Mike Hoover's visual portrayal of the exhilarations of a solo mountain climber. It was photographed on 21 different climbs across the North American continent.
Doris Chase's "Circles" is an abstract computer film in which the famous sculptress uses a musical score by George Kleinsinger, and "Plum" is one of four films by James Herbert involving skin texture. Herbert is a painter and professor of art at the University of Georgia.

Gunvor Nelson's "Take-Off" is a modern variant on the strip-tease artist. "Cels," by Susan Pitt Kranning is a six-minute series of animated vignettes made with students at the Minneapolis College of Art & Design. In "Frank Film," film maker Frank Mouris has thousands of images cross and fill the screen as a narrator recites all the things that have interested him in life.
Other titles to be screened Monday are David Rimmer's "Surfacing on the Thames," Richard Brick's "House Construction Home Movie," Lillian Schwartz & Ken Knowlton's "Enigma," Georges Dufaux' "Multiple Man," and Jeremy Paul Kagan's "The What Did You Of The Movie Movie?"

IN MARCH.....
Auditions, Plays. Auditions are now in progress for "Citizen Kong," Theatre Intime's third spring production. Appointments may be made at 452-8181. Audition material is up to the individual actor. Auditions for dancers and chorus will be announced later.
Meanwhile, Intime is rehearsing two plays by Edward Albee for presentation March 14-16 and 21-23. The plays are "The Sandbox" and "The American Dream," both with the same characters.
"Sandbox" is a compact, stylized version of the more familiar "American Dream." There is the same family: mommy, daddy and grandma. Daddy is a brow-beaten wreck, mommy is a monster, grandma is a tough country-born philosopher. The director is Jim Shankman.

"WHERE'S CHARLEY?"
At Hun School. A logical answer. It's the musical version of that ancient chestnut, "Charley's Aunt" and it will be presented at the Hun School next Thursday, February 14, and next Saturday, February 16, at 8:15 p.m.
You'll recall that the Brazilian aunt, Donna Lucia, is really an Oxford undergraduate wearing what is probably the theatre's most famous disguise. In this production of the farce, Brian

No fee will be charged, but reservations are necessary. A call to the Jewish Center, 924-5493, or to Ruth Schulman, 924-7235, will assure a reservation.

Carr is Charley, Ken Baggaley is his room-mate and Susan Fulton and Amy Grodnick are their girl friends.
Nancy Berents is the real Donna Lucia, Ted McNulty is the room-mate's father and Scott Smith is Amy's uncle.

INTIME PLAY READY
"Killing Ground." The "killing ground" of the title is the big city itself, and the characters in William Hanley's play, "Slow Dance on the Killing Ground" are three individuals trying to find themselves in that big city.
The play will open this Thursday and continue Friday and Saturday, with performances next Thursday, Friday and Saturday also. Curtain time is 8:30 p.m., the place is Murray Theatre, the producer is Theatre Intime.
In "Slow Dance," the three characters—Mr. Glass, Randall and Rosie—are all trying to escape the memories and consequences of the past. It is, says Intime, "a very human play."

SCHOLARSHIP FUNDS
From PHS Musical, Princeton High School's drama group is cooperating again this winter with the Princeton Regional Scholarship Foundation to help raise money for the "Student-to-Student Grants."
The committee is headed by Mrs. Henry H. Freedman, who is assisted by Mrs. Kenneth Negus and Mrs. Lee Cleveland. They will solicit ads for the play's program and sell patron tickets at $5.

The Long Goodbye. The name is still the same, Philip Marlowe, private eye. And those who thought that Humphrey Bogart portrayed Raymond Chandler's famous investigator better than anyone else are going to be convinced more than ever after watching Elliott Gould play Marlowe in this film by Director Robert (M+A+S+H) Altman.

But comparisons are unfair, for the world Bogart operated in and the one Gould stumbles through are worlds apart. Bogart was tough, sure of himself and acted, Gould is rather ingenuous and lets himself be acted upon. His Marlowe is a chilling study of an innocent loose in the self-centered, heartless California life style of the '70s.

The case for Gould in "Goodbye" is the exonerated of an old friend (played by ex-Yankee pitcher Jim Bouton) who may or may not have killed his wife but who certainly did flee to Mexico and commit suicide. The more Marlowe looks into the matter, the less attractive his friend appears and the more it hurts. Once the essence of tough cynicism, Gould's Marlowe is almost a Candide in his ability to be hurt and his lack of understanding of the true viciousness around him. Essentially, the film is one giant act of betrayal.

Gould reveals little character development. With his wide button eyes and always a hint of five o'clock shadow, he looks the part but seldom lives it. Others in the film are satisfactory, especially Nina van Pallandt (of Clifford Irving renown) as the friendly, desirable, long-suffering wife of Sterling Hayden, a sort of proxy Hemingway. Gould is different, but Bogart was better.

PRINCE
Alfredo, Alfredo. In this ironic comedy, which tackles Italy's social and sexual mores in much the same caustic vein as "Divorce...Italian Style," Dustin Hoffman is well cast as a timid bank clerk whose love life becomes overly energetic when he weds a possessive shrew in lamb's clothing.

Hoffman (dubbed effectively in Italian) gives a marvelously funny and very Italian performance as the clerk whose love life goes from famine to uncontrollable least when he lands aggressive Stefania Sandrelli. The latter is Hoffman's perfect nemesis. A deceptively quiet pharmacist, once she lands her man, she turns into a sbrill sbrew, placing an unhearable sexual and emotional drain on her frail husband. The result is a refreshing, frequently hilarious import.

Their courtship is a series of ironic vignettes. Once married, Ms. Sandrelli soon estranges Hoffman from his friends and family and decides the marriage won't work unless they have a child. It turns out she is "built wrong" and in one of the film's funniest sequences, Hoffman is forced to dash back and forth from the bank to try to impregnate her at her most fertile hours.

Beneath the veneer of cruel humor, director Pietro Germi's film attacks Italy's antiquated social and sexual codes as well as the everyday human frailties that collide with them. Toward the end, it tends to become diluted in legal arguments, many of which have since been changed and loses some of its bite—but the effervescence nonetheless remains.

GARDEN
Siddhartha. This film by director Conrad Rooks, who read Hermann Hesse's novel Siddhartha sixteen years ago when it had a cult following and immediately—so the story goes—decided some day to adapt it for the screen, is all too often a self-conscious "arty" version and, worse, all too often dull.

The basic problem is that the story is philosophical, not dramatic. Set in India 25 centuries ago, the novel is an allegorical tale of Siddhartha, a young Brahmin, who searches for a meaningful way of life from 18 until he is an old man. In the course of his lifelong search, he practices asceticism, studies with the Buddha, experiences sensual pleasures, achieves material wealth, undergoes a period of self-disgust and eventually finds harmony with himself.

All of this is depicted with scenes of Siddhartha wandering, making love, working and so on—all to Indian music and chants in the background—but there are few dramatic conversations or confrontations. Mostly the viewer is left with nothing but poetic philosophical exchanges; it is almost like watching an enactment of Plato's "Republic."

Shot entirely on location in India, the film's only real strong point is its color photography.

Keith Romano will conduct; other performers are Fred Sherry, 'cellist; Nathan Kaplan and David Saperstein, pianists; Michael Parloff, flute; Frank Hostika, trumpet; and Paul Cohen, tenor saxophone.

The program will be: Elliott Carter: Canto and Canaries (Timpani solos); David Saperstein: Duo for Piano and Vihraphone (a first performance); Ingolf Dahl: Duetino Concertante (Flute and Percussion); Stefan Wolpe: Quartet for Piano, Trumpet, Saxophone and Drums; Charles Wuorinen: Grand Union for Cello and Drums.

Mr. Passaro has performed with many contemporary music groups and, as a member of "Speculum Musicae," was heard in their concert here. He is currently attending the Manhattan School of Music in the graduate division.

The concert is open to the public, admission free.

CLEVELANDERS HERE

Orchestra Coming Tuesday. The Cleveland Orchestra, conducted by Lorin Maazel, will be heard at McCarter Theatre Tuesday at 8:30 in the third concert of Series I of the Princeton University Concerts.

Last heard in Princeton in 1971, it ranks among the world's few great orchestras. Its European, Oriental and annual American tours have brought it to audiences running to hundreds of thousands.

Mr. Maazel became the Orchestra's Music Director at the beginning of the 1972-1973 season. Born in Paris of American parents in 1930, he has been regarded as a phenomenal conductor since he was a child, having conducted the Los Angeles Philharmonic at 9, the N.B.C. Symphony Orchestra and the New York Philharmonic at 11, and the Cleveland Orchestra at 13.

He has since conducted more than 3,000 concerts with virtually every major orchestra and over 300 performances of opera. Recently, he joined the Cleveland Orchestra on its tour of Australia, conducting four concerts with virtually every major orchestra and over 300 performances of opera. Recently, he joined the Cleveland Orchestra on its tour of Australia, conducting four concerts in the inaugural ceremonies of the Sydney Opera House.

For its program in Princeton, the orchestra will perform Mozart's "Symphony No. 29" and Mahler's "Symphony No. 7."

AMATEURS TO MEET

Sunday at All Saints'. The Princeton Society of Musical Amateurs will hold its next meeting Sunday at 5 at All Saints' Church, Van Dyke-Terhune Roads. James Litton, Choirmaster of Trinity Church, will conduct the Haydn "Nelson Mass" for chorus and orchestra. Soloists will be Lucy Formwalt, soprano; Shirley Kinsley, alto; Donald Caldwell, tenor; and Daniel Pratt, bass. The Concertmaster for this reading will be Mary Anne Walker, and the organist Harold Pysker.

Anyone interested in choral singing is invited to participate or attend. No auditions are necessary for the chorus, and no special requirements other than modest sight-reading ability. For reservation call Mrs. Michael Ramus at 924-4266. There is a small charge for those without a yearly membership, to cover music and refreshments.

JOINT CONCERT AT PHS

This Friday Evening. The Pingry School Glee Club and the Princeton High School Women's Chorus will present a joint concert in the P.H.S. auditorium on Friday at 8:30.

The Pingry School Brass Choir will open the concert. The Women's Chorus will then sing "Repleti Sunt Omnes" and "Regnum Mundi," by Jacob Handl; "Assumpta Est" by S. Aichinger and "Ave Maria" by Zoltan Kodaly. They will be conducted by William Trego.

The Pingry Glee Club will sing "Cantate Domino" by Hans Leo von Hassler; "Crucifixus" by Antonio Lotti; "O Filii et Filiae" by Volckmar Leisring; "Angelus ad Pastores Ait" by Orlando di Lasso; "Two Kings" by Joseph W. Clokey; "Wondrous Love" by Paul Christiansen, and "Hush, My Dear, Lie Still and Slumber" by Robert Barrow.

The two groups will then join to sing Benjamin Britten's "Rejoice in the Lamb," conducted by William Trego and accompanied by Nancianne Parella.

The public is invited to attend, free of charge.

ORGAN RECITALS SET

At Choir College. William Hays, associate professor of organ at Westminster Choir College, will present identical recitals on Monday at 5:30 and on Tuesday at 8 p.m. Both recitals will be held in the Casavant Recital Hall on the Westminster campus, and are open to the public without charge. Because seating is limited, tickets are required and may be obtained at the Receptionist Desk in Williamson Hall.

Part of the 1973-74 Faculty Recital series, the recitals will honor the 80th birthday of Andre Marchal, the French organist with whom Mr. Hays studied in Paris. His program will include "Veni Creator" by de Grigny; three chorale preludes by Bach's Clavierbung, Part III; "Fantaisie in B Flat" by Boely; Franck's "Chorale in B minor," "Fresque symphonique sacree, op. 75," by Tournemire; and Saint-Saens "Prelude and Fugue in E Flat, op. 99, no. 3."

HUG 'UMS, LOVE 'UMS: These red and white intertwined mice were caught stealing an early valentine kiss in the window of the Mulberry Bush in Pennington. Although they are sold as a pair ($6), the mice do snap apart.

IT'S NEW
To Us

LOVING THOUGHTS
 For Valentine's Day. The tradition of sending cards, flowers, candy or a gift to your sweetheart on Valentine's Day stems from the Roman festival of Lupercalia, honoring Juno the goddess of women and marriage.

On this day young men and women would draw a partner's name from a box and then exchange gifts. With the spread of christianity, churchmen tried to do away with such pagan practices. However, even making it a Saint's day could not destroy the sentimental meaning.

February 14 remains a day of affection, and we have some thoughts on ways to say "Be my valentine." Applegate Floral Shop, 47 Palmer Square West, has just completed terrariums in every possible size and shape for a gift of flowers that will last well beyond February.

These terrariums are beautifully done with miniature plants, many with color such as coleus and baby spider plants, and decorated with rocks, white pebbles and small bridges, $10 to $35. We even saw a most unusual cactus terrarium with a blooming crown of thorns that will thrive happily if the top is opened every few days.

Another lasting gift is a dried flower arrangement. The spring ones are ready with hand-painted wooden flowers adding a bright touch, $6.50 to $35. Especially for Valentine's Day there is a heart shaped arrangement filled with red flowers and statice.

The most romantic gift of all must be a dozen long-stemmed red roses, and although they are expensive ($18), it is a gift that would long be remembered.

Other fresh flowers include many colored tulips, iris, daffodils, bachelor buttons and pompom mums, $3.50 to $7.50 a dozen. While any of these make spring seem a reality, nothing can top a pot of pink, white or purple hyacinths for a beautiful scent, $5.

Applegate's also has hardy azaleas and chrysanthemums which currently are fully in bloom and which later can be planted in the garden to bloom again.

A little further down Palmer Square at Polly's Fine Candies we ran the gamut of chocolate hearts, 30 cents to about $12. These include red and gold foil covered ones to large pink or red heart boxes filled with chocolates.

Some of the boxes have romantic scenes with sayings such as, "To live...to love...to be together...always," others are decorated with flowers, and another is red and white check with a small Raggedy Ann doll on the cover.

Valentine Kiss. Polly Lyons also has loose candy hearts which can be bought by the pound. There are prettily decorated red or white crystal cream mints, red and white jelly mints and tiny red pectin hearts which have been used to decorate a tree in the window.

However, the niftiest gift of all is a Super Kiss. This is almost a pound of solid milk chocolate in the shape of a kiss, $2.25, and Mrs. Lyons told us these have been extremely popular.

New to Princeton and only at Polly's is the Barton's line of candies. We saw boxes of TV Munch, Nut Clusters, Swissiana Miniatures and Petits Fours, and cans of Nutty Duttty Caramel, Fruit Drops and Coffee Loves. In addition, Barton's has some excellent dietetic candy.

Jewelry is always a lover's gift, and H. R. Kalmus, 6 1/2 Chambers Street, has lots of hearts. For pierced ears there are gold filigree hearts, dainty double hearts that dangle from the ears, and tiny double hearts on a post mounting, $7.50 to $18.50.

For a young girl we saw a small 10 karat gold heart-shaped ring that can be engraved, $13.50, and for an older girl a larger ring prettily topped with synthetic sapphires, $43.

Locketts are a perfect valentine gift and Mr. Kalmus has a 14 karat gold one that can be engraved, $39, or a sterling silver one with a non-tarnishing rhodium finish, $15.50. Also in silver is a link bracelet with many tiny hearts, $19.95.

A watch is never inappropriate and the choice is always wide from handsome gold bracelet watches to fashion co-ordinated ones. Just right for Valentine's Day is a square pink plastic watch with a deeper pink band, $16.95, or a ring with a watch tucked under a dome with filigree trim, $30.

Some other earrings that even without hearts spoke of love were two tiny enameled blue birds sitting together on a branch, or a pair of honey bears.

More Kisses. Although they are not edible, the candy kisses at LaVake's, 54 Nassau Street, are delicious looking. These sterling silver kisses come either bumpy as though they are wrapped in foil or smooth like the chocolate, $17 and each kiss has its own chain.

Other valentine jewelry suggestions are a ring saying "love," $32, or one with a twisted love knot on the top, $48. We also saw a pin with two shiny gold intertwined hearts and a large silver heart to be worn as a pendant, $50 each.

Heart-shaped boxes are not only pretty to look at, but would be very useful on a bureau or desk. The Limoges ones are decorated with hand-painted flowers and trimmed with gold, $15 to $37.50, while the Ansley china sweetheart box is decorated with the 18th century Pembroke pattern of oriental birds and flowers.

Ansley also makes bone china flowers, and LaVake's has trimmed the white ones with tiny red velvet bows for a valentine gift. Baskets of many other flowers, such as daffodils are also available, $8.50 to $27.50.

For children, International Arrivals at the Princeton Shopping Center has a great selection of valentines. There are ones with stickers, lollipops, jigsaw puzzles, riddles, or funny eyeglasses. We also saw heart-shaped cookie cutters with Snoopy or Charlie Brown in the center, valentine change purses, and lapel pins of Cupid or Raggedy Ann and Andy.

There are cards for a sweetheart of any age, pretty red and pink papers for wrapping a special gift, and paper goods from the invitations to a centerpiece of flower hearts for a valentine party.

Hallmark publishes many books about love, most of which have poems or sayings and which are beautifully illustrated with photographs. You have to browse through them to find the most appropriate one, but a sampling of the titles includes: "How Do I Love Thee? - Beautiful Love Poems of Yesterday and Today," "The Gift of Love," "Lovesaples," and "For Love's Sake Only: Songs of the Heart by Elizabeth Barrett and Robert Browning," $5 to $8.50.

A romantic valentine night might include sampling wines from a newly filled wine rack. International Arrivals has openers, decanters, glasses and wine racks that hold anywhere from 4 to 17 bottles. Stop at your favorite liquor store for some wine choices and you're all set for an evening of celebration.

"SENTIMENTAL JOURNEY:" More than half a century ago, the Kemmerer family of Princeton set out on a boat ride up the Parana River to view the famous Iguazu Falls, located at the juncture of Argentina, Paraguay and Brazil. They never made it. The ship on which they were traveling, the Villatranca, exploded in flames, and more than 80 persons drowned or were burned to death. The Kemmerers, however, swam to safety and became international examples of why swimming was a valuable form of recreation. Last month the two Kemmerer children, Ruth, now Mrs. Erling Dorf of 283 Mercer Road, and Donald L. Kemmerer, retired professor of economic history at the University of Illinois, completed the trip that was interrupted in 1922. They returned home with this photograph of the Iguazu Falls, which they say are just as spectacular in real life in 1974 as they had been in their imaginations since 1922. Mrs. Dorf and Mr. Kemmerer left their spouses at home for this trip and called it, "our sentimental journey."

Who thinks about buying a pool at this time of year?

Very, very smart people.

Smart, because prices are at their lowest right now. Smart, because if they buy now they're guaranteed of swimming all summer long. Starting Memorial Day!

And smart people are finding out all they can now before they make that final decision. Like finding out about all the exclusive Sylvan features that help reduce maintenance to a bare minimum. And generally discovering that all pools are not alike. Most smart people find that the Sylvan differences can make all the difference in the world.

If you're close to making your decision, do what most smart pool buyers do. Talk to Sylvan. And talk now!

Name of the Game

Hey, kids! Have you figured out every suspect in that "Clue" game? Gotten bored with "Talking Football"? Memorized every word from your "Hulk" comic books? If so, you'd better trade those tired games in for some new ones at the Princeton Public Library's "Game Swap," Wednesday, February 20, at 3:30. The Library asks that games come in their boxes with no missing parts and that comic books have their covers. That's no fun but maybe the new game or comic you get will be.

them for excellent service.

John W. Kauffman, executive vice-president, has announced that an unnamed former employee has established a fund to award $100 annually to "an employee who personifies the highest ideals and aims of the Board of Trustees." Arranged through the donor's attorneys, the fund is arranged so that its creator's identity is unknown even to the center's Board of Trustees.

The award will be presented annually in honor of Dr. Ralph J. Belford, a member of the center's medical staff since 1928.

"We have always had great pride in our staff, both professional and non-professional," Kauffman said. "That the donor of this award is a former staff member adds even more to its value for us."

"We wish we knew who the donor is, so that we might appropriately thank him or her. We are, of course, extremely pleased."

Also included in the fund arrangements was a suggestion that the award be presented with "a lettered diploma in a leather folder from the Trustees with the recipient's name on it suitable for framing."

The mystery donor offered to cover those costs as well as the award itself. A date for the presentation of the first award has not been set.

SEMINAR SCHEDULED

On Scientific Job Openings. Science and technology-minded students from Princeton area high schools and colleges, high school guidance counselors and science teachers, and Princeton University science and engineering majors are invited to a seminar at 3:30 on Monday in Room C-207 of Princeton's Engineering Quadrangle on Olden Street.

The purpose of the seminar, which will be addressed by Betty M. Vetter, Executive Director of the Scientific Manpower Commission, is to explore the rising employment market for physical scientists and engineers. Mrs. Vetter reports that the employment market for scientists and engineers has risen sharply since the drop-off during 1970-72. "At the same time," she says, "enrollments in engineering have dropped so rapidly over the past three years, that a shortage of new graduates is anticipated through 1977. A similar situation exists in the physical sciences," she adds.

DRIVE NEARS GOAL

At Medical Center. Donations from both former and new subscribers this week brought The Princeton Medical Center's annual giving drive to a grand total of $356,524, within less than $45,000 of its $400,000 goal.

Announcing the new total, Resources Committee Chairman William L. Wilson said, "This week's contributions give us a real boost toward our goal of reducing the center's outstanding indebtedness and acquiring new and badly needed equipment." Mr. Wilson said the latest campaign total was made possible by the gifts of 37 individuals and businesses, 12 of which had never before contributed.

"I'm delighted at the response," said Mr. Wilson. "But I must remind residents throughout the center's community we have only until February 24—the day before our annual meeting—to meet our goal. But I'm confident the response will enable us to meet that objective."

Nearly 80 per cent of the gifts received by the center are under $100. "We'll need a number of major gifts, as well as the generous response of smaller donors if we are to complete the campaign successfully," he said.

Of the campaign's $400,000 goal, $150,000 will be used to reduce the center's indebtedness, Wilson said. The remaining $250,000 will be invested in modernization and acquisition programs aimed at the center's Princeton Hospital unit surgical and radiology departments.

The committee chairman said only contributions received before the facilities' February 25 annual meeting will be credited to the campaign.

WHY WE'RE MAKING 1974 THE YEAR OF 1974.

It's being called the year of uncertainty. But whatever the future holds, New Jersey Bell is convinced that an attitude of "Yes" in everything we do will go a long way toward making even an uncertain year a successful one.

A new idea? Hardly. When we encourage our people to think yes, say yes and act yes in their day-to-day jobs, all we're really doing is reinforcing the "Spirit of Service" that has grown up in the Bell System over the years.

No one knows better than we do that our success can't be measured solely in terms of how many phones we install, or how many calls are made. But rather, by how well we serve your individual needs.

The "Yes" button each of us has received is merely a symbolic reminder that even though we number our customers in the millions, we serve them one at a time. The real effect of this program will be seen and felt by you in the way we respond to your requests and solve your communications problems.

We want you to get the most out of your phone service.

NOSTALGIA FEATURED

At Squibb Gallery, "American Nostalgia" will feature a collection of paintings by John Falter which portray familiar facets of America. It will open Monday at the Squibb Gallery, Route 206, and Mr. Falter will be at the gallery from 11:30 to 12:30 on Monday to meet guests. His works will remain on display through February 22.

Mr. Falter began his career as a major American illustrator and painter at 22. At 18 he had entered the Kansas City Art Institute and at 20 had won a scholarship to The Art Students League in New York.

His historical paintings and landscapes are in eastern and midwestern art museums and private collections, and his illustrations have appeared in numerous publications. He has done covers for Look magazine and more than 185 covers for The Saturday Evening Post.

Several of Mr. Falter's "Post" covers from the 1940's and 50's will be in the Squibb exhibition. These include whimsical human interest scenes against Nebraskan landscapes of the artist's youth and panoramas of farming country and spacious skies.

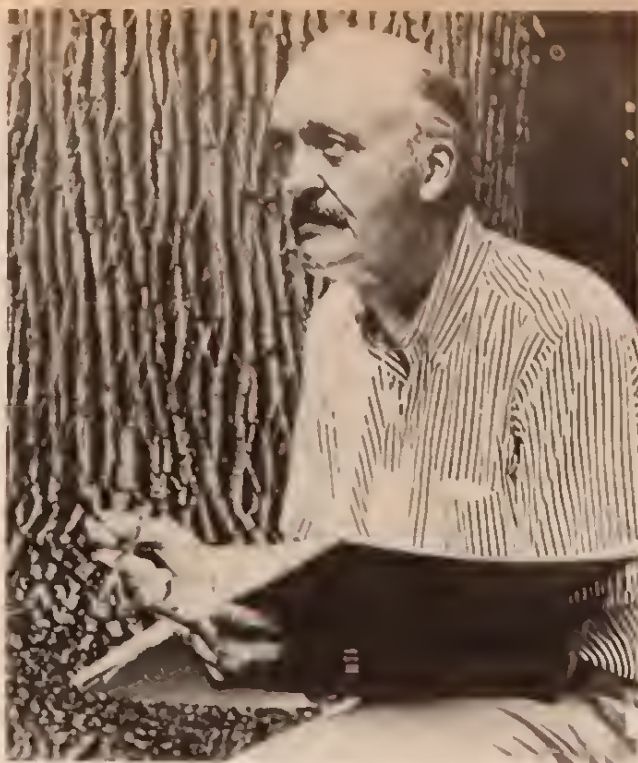

A self portrait, painted for the cover of a 1952 issue of "Newsweek" magazine, and recent studies of leading jazz performers round out the exhibition. Mr. Falter is himself a jazz pianist.

The Personal Approach. A Falter painting is ineradicably his own. The girls on his canvases are approximate facsimiles of his own daughter at 12 and all the boys are the artist himself in one reincarnation or another. A recurrent image in his paintings is a water tower in his home town where as a boy he spent endless hours looking down on the world he loved.

Most of his paintings interrelate human and natural life and he seems drawn to the sky. Those perceptive enough will note that Mr. Falter always paints from the south looking north.

The next exhibition in Squibb Gallery, "Eye of the Beholder," focuses on the art of photography and features 57 large color photographs by 21 internationally known photographers. An opening reception of the exhibition on March 1 will benefit The Retinitis Pigmentosa Foundation. The exhibition continues through March 22.

EXHIBITION LINE WORK

Coming to Art Museum. An exhibition of wall drawings and sculptures by six contemporary artists -- "Line as Language: Six Artists Draw" -- will open at The Art Museum of Princeton University on February 23 for a five-week stay.

The artists represented in the exhibition are Mel Bochner, Sol LeWitt, Robert Morris, Dorothea Rockburne, Richard Serra and Richard Tuttle. They will come to Princeton ten days before the exhibition opens to execute their works directly on the walls and floor of the Museum.

Bochner, for example, will do a work entitled Theory of Painting, which is painted on loose, overlapping newspaper. Rockburne's "Neighborhood" will be ink and graphite lines that extend onto the wall around and under a sheet of paper that has been folded twice and hung in place by nails. LeWitt and Morris will do wall drawings, Tuttle a sectional sculpture and Serra a torn-lead sculpture.

Dr. Rosalind Krauss, Director of Princeton's Visual Arts Program and a member of the faculty of the Department of Art and Archaeology, has organized the exhibition and prepared the 36-page catalogue. As well as photographs of the works created for the exhibition, the catalogue has more than 30 illustrations of works by the six artists and others. Dr. Krauss discusses the art-historical and philosophical background that pointed the artists in the direction of the Princeton project, relating their work to that of Jasper Johns and Frank Stella.

In addition, there are brief biographies of the six artists. The catalogue will be available at the exhibition for $2.00. The exhibition and its catalogue have been supported by a grant from the Walter Foundation of Princeton. The exhibition will run until March 31.

EXHIBIT EXTENDED

Norton Simon Art to Stay. Peter C. Bunnell, Director of The Art Museum at Princeton University, has announced that through a mutual agreement between Princeton and the Norton Simon, Inc. Museum of Art, the loan exhibition of European art now at the Museum will remain here through June 30.

This collection opened in December 1972 and had been scheduled to close after a one-year period. The response to the exhibition by the University community and many others has encouraged the Museum to extend the showing an additional six months.

Mr. Simon said: "I am very pleased by the warm and enthusiastic public response concern has always been to use art as a means of communication and education. On the basis of what I have heard and read, the students and other segments of the Princeton community have appreciated being able to confront directly the paintings and sculpture on loan."

Mr. Bunnell pointed out that several pieces have been added to the collection, making the extended exhibition one of new depth and diversity. Among them are three works of contemporary sculpture: "Tall Figure I" by Alberto Giacometti, "Rock Form" by Barbara Hepworth, and "Classical Sculpture" by Hans Arp. Four paintings from the modern period have also joined the collection: "Still Life with Pipe" by Georges Braque, "Bathers beneath Trees" by Ludwig Kirchner, "Frau Erfurth" by Oskar Kokoschka, and "Street Near the Palace" by Lyonel Feininger. Mr. Bunnell added that large segments of the exhibition have been completely reinstalled.

In addition, the exhibition highlights the first American showing of a fourteenth-century Italian altarpiece by the Paduan painter Guariento di Arpo. This is one of the first altarpieces to depict the Infancy of Christ and the Passion. Guariento painted the story in a series of panels for the front of the large altarpiece, a unique treatment.

Also included are two fifteenth-century panels by Filippino Lippi depicting "Saints Benedict and Appollonia" and "Saints Paul and Fredianus." These paintings were the subject of a recent scholarly article by Millard Meiss, published in the December 1973 Art Bulletin, a reprint of which is available at the Museum's sales desk.

The exhibition contains works by Veneziano, Lorenzetti, Bassano, Lucas Cranach, Rubens, Monet, Cezanne, van Gogh, Renoir, Degas, Picasso, Chagall, Lipchitz, Matisse and Nolde. The Art Museum is open Tuesdays through Saturdays from 10 to 4 and Sundays from 1 to 5. There is no admission charge.

In looking over the final figures of the National Football League's 1973 season, there's a real oddity...The two teams who reached the Super Bowl, Miami and Minnesota, had NO players who led the league in individual statistics in any major department!...For example, the leading passer in the league for the season was Roger Staubach of Dallas; the leading rusher was O.J. Simpson of Buffalo; the leading receiver was Harold Carmichael of Philadelphia; the leading place kicker was David Ray of Los Angeles. Not one Miami or Minnesota player is listed at the top!

Here's a basketball oddity...The two identical twins who have played in the National Basketball Association—Tom and Dick Van Arsdale—have scored almost the identical number of points to each other throughout their high school, college and pro careers!

Here's an interesting basketball question...Of all the men who ever played major college basketball, which ones scored the most total points?...The top 3 major college scorers of all-time are Pete Maravich, who played at LSU from 1967 to 1970...Austin Carr of Notre Dame (1968-1971) and Oscar Robertson of the University of Cincinnati (1957-1960).

Princeton's hockey team, which a few short weeks ago was mired in a rut of mediocrity, will hattle Harvard in Baker Rink Saturday night for a share of second place. Even more fascinatingly, if the Tigers top the Crimson, and Cornell defeats Dartmouth in its annual Winter Carnival game at Hanover, the Orange and Black would have a portion of the top rung of the ladder. When Princeton last finished on top of the Ivy standings, some of the players on the current Tiger roster were not even born. It was 1953.

The league is in the thick of its closest race in nearly a decade because the long dynasty that Cornell launched in 1966 is tottering and because a couple of perennial second-division entries like Dartmouth and Princeton have suddenly shown they can play with the best of the Ivies. While no team has yet been mathematically eliminated, the Green remains the favorite, both on a basis of fewest games lost and the fact that it has only Brown and Cornell of its last six opponents to play on the road. But all four of the teams with at least eight points are still in the running.

Princeton confirmed Saturday that its back-to-back 10-1 losses to Harvard and Dartmouth were not a normal way of life, and that its solid 4-1 upset of defending champion Cornell earlier last week could serve as the foundation for more of the same. Very possibly never in the modern history of the sport here have the Tigers won successive games from a pair of opponents whose own records were as impressive as the 10-3-1 and 10-2-1 marks that Cornell and Dartmouth brought into Baker Rink.

Two Spectacular Periods. Forty minutes after the game began, Princeton had a 5-0 lead over Dartmouth, and the league-leaders and been outshot by an astounding 32 to 12 margin. In two-thirds of a game, Chuck Walker, the east's best goalie, had had his average of 2.27 goals allowed more than doubled.

It was just as well for the home team that it had so much in the bank that there was some left to squander. In the first 11 minutes of the final round, three defensive lapses cost the Tigers as many goals.

Gone were the sky-high energy and the take-charge style of play of all three periods against Cornell and the first two Saturday afternoon. But despite ability to get off only four shots on the second-string Dartmouth goalie, the Orange and Black stemmed its let-down, fought off a power play successfully in the closing minutes and richly deserved every superlative due it for the 5-3 victory.

The game was less than three minutes old when senior wing Brian MacIntosh dug the puck out of Cornell ice, fed forward Craig Dahl a perfect 50-foot diagonal pass that sent the team's leading scorer in on the goal from the right. His shot was blocked but sophomore Gary O'Meara was there to jab in the rebound.

At 15:02, steady Princeton pressure paid off as defenseman Jim Damberger and forward Mark Stuckey collaborated, with the latter on the scoring end. Both teams had chances on power plays in the first 20 minutes, without result. The period was the roughest in the game, three of the visitors and two Princetonians spending time in the bin, but the threat of a major ruckus fortunately never materialized.

Three Picture Goals. Each of Princeton's goals in the second period was cut from the pattern that makes hockey the best of all sports for its devotees. In order:

● Walt Snickenberger took a pass at center ice from defenseman Alan Rosner, split the Dartmouth defense, taked out the goalie and flicked the puck into a corner at 7:31.

● The O'Meara-Dahl-MacIntosh line broke 3 on 1, Dahl feeding O'Meara at just the right moment for another shot that the beleaguered goalie could not handle. The time was 13:43.

● O'Meara registered his third point of the day when he set up sophomore defenseman Paul Dionne with a drop pass which the latter whistled 40 feet into the far corner, about six inches under the bar. It was 16:39, and nearly 2,000 Rink Rats were nearly delirious.

Two factors, primarily, have been highly visible in Princeton's sharp form reversal. In both the Cornell and Dartmouth games, the Tigers have done an outstanding job of forechecking and of digging the puck out of their own end. Goalie Phil Robinson, as usual, has contributed numerous eye-catching saves, but the fact that both Cornell and Dartmouth were blanked through the first two periods attests to the control Princeton has had of the puck in its own zone.

On offense, the Tigers are getting a much faster jump because their long lead passes zero in on the breakaway forward's stick. Once down ice, their attack has continued to apply the pressure, with good point play an asset.

With five Ivy games left (Harvard, Brown, Yale, Penn here, Cornell away), Princeton can mold its future on its own—rather than at the hands of opponents which have long enjoyed snowballing the Tigers downhill. If they finish third, it will be their best Ivy mark since 1966.

Also within reach are the ECAC playoffs, where they have not been since 1968. That was also the last year they topped .500 overall and the current 8-9-1 record puts both goals within reach.

POE CUP TO CRONIN

At Football Dinner. The awarding of the John Prentiss Poe Cup to senior offensive guard Bill Cronin of Port Washington, N.Y. highlighted the annual Princeton University Football Awards Dinner Monday evening.

The Poe Cup is presented each year to that senior or seniors "for all around ability and character," and is considered Princeton's highest gridiron prize. Cronin, who captained the team this past year, started every game and received first team All-Ivy honors for his standout play. He was credited in great part with keeping the squad at a high mental pitch for each game despite the fact that the Tigers had a 1-8 season.

Four other trophies were also presented at the dinner. Sharing the Charles W. Caldwell Memorial trophy for "the greatest improvement in

In racing, long tubular racing skates are used and the skating strokes must be as long as possible, particularly in the long distance events. The sport is popular in both the United States and Canada, as well as in the Scandinavian countries. Common distances skated are the 220, 440, and 880 yards. Distance speeds far exceed the running speeds. A mile can be skated in less than two minutes and thirty-nine seconds.

Four New England Road Games to Determine Fate of Tiger Quintet in Current Ivy Campaign

A pair of demanding road trips in the next two weeks will determine whether Princeton's basketball team can match last year's satisfactory performance—a 16-9 record overall and runner-up honors in the Ivy League. Although there is a slim hope that Penn will lose to the likes of Brown and Harvard while the Tigers are defeating the same opponents, second-place is the highest logical finish for the Orange and Black in 1974 after last week's 67-65 loss to Penn at the Palestra.

Brown, Friday night's opponent in Providence, has a balanced, aggressive young team that held the Tigers to an even break in their series last winter, the loss to the Bruins preventing Princeton from catching Penn after Brown had obliged by trimming the Quakers, too. Yale, no better than 6-10 on the season, can score well but plays very little defense. However, the Elis also topped Coach Pete Carril's quintet once last season, and their physical approach to the game makes them a difficult foe to dominate.

The following weekend, the Orange and Black will play Dartmouth at Hanover and Harvard at Cambridge. It has already won from this pair without difficulty, but Harvard can be tough to handle on its own court. Of the four games immediately ahead, only the one with Dartmouth, victor in but a single game this season, appears to have an assured outcome.

Princeton will make the trip with only nine players. Sophomore Bob Slaughter, a regular throughout most of the first half of the campaign, is out for the rest of the schedule with mononucleosis. Senior Bob Deist has been forced to quit with a bad back, and senior Al Burton, a rarely-used guard, dropped off the squad. Jayvee basketball no longer exists here, so there are no replacements.

TRIUMPHS ONE-SIDED
Over Columbia and Cornell. When the horn sounded to start the Columbia game in Jadwin Gym Friday, the Lions asked for more time to practice because the regular warm-up session had been curtailed by a late-running freshman game. The officials gave them another five minutes, but it hardly mattered. They lost, 90 to 47.

As in the Cornell game the next night, about the only interest—outside of some occasionally fine plays the Tigers executed—was seeing whether Princeton could score two points for every one it allowed its sadly undermanned opponents. Most of the time, it did, posting such leads as 60-30 and then 70-31 over Columbia and leading Cornell by as much as 25-10 before the first period was half over.

Clearer indication of the measure of the two mismatches was the Tigers' two-night total of 182 points while using virtually any combination of the available nine players that served to keep four of the squad from being overworked. Prior to the weekend, the Tigers had been averaging 124 points every two games.

Against Columbia, the relaxed Princetonians shot 67 percent from the floor in the first half and made all five of their free throws. Not until the ten-minute mark did they draw their first personal. By the end of the evening, their field goal average was still a fine 57 percent and they had four players in double figures: Barnes Hauptfuhrer, 19; Joe Vavricka, 17; Andy Rimol, 16; and Mickey Steurer, 11.

Fifty-five percent shooting in the first half against Cornell and this time 11-for-11 from the line made that game, too, a runaway before the intermission. Because reserve guard Tim Van Blommestein got lots of opportunities to break away in the open game, he led all scorers with 20 points—undoubtedly the highest score ever posted for a non-starter here. Four other Tigers joined him in double figures: Rimol, 13; Steurer, 12; Vavricka and Hauptfuhrer, a dozen apiece. The final this time was 92-56.

"We outrebounded them and were able run. When you get that plus good shooting," he continued, "it's hard not to win." Randy Bullock, Bobby King and Pete Watson shared rebounding honors for PHS.

Adding luster to the big win was the fact that PHS engineered it with its second best shooter, Ted Brown, sidelined. Brown was injured in the Trenton game when he football at Princeton," were split end Bill Skinner (Vandergrift, Pa.) who set a career record of 75 pass receptions this year, and center Jim Rafeedie (Youngstown, Ohio), highly effective member of the Tiger offensive line.

The Dr. Harry R. McPhee Award presented "for demonstrated qualities of durability and fortitude," went this year to defensive tackle Ken Beytin (East Northport, N.Y.) and to linebacker Tony Riposta (North Arlington, N.J.). Both were three-year lettermen, who overcame injuries to play fine football for Princeton during their varsity careers.

Linebacker Don MacQuen of Somerville was also honored, receiving the Donald B. Lourie Award for "ability, conduct and attitude" as a freshman football player.

PHS 80, IRISH 43
St. Anthony Here Tuesday. Even the fabled luck of the Irish would have been helpless before the shooting onslaught unleashed Friday by the Princeton High School basketball team against Notre Dame High.

The visiting Little Tigers hit on 64 percent of their shots to bury Notre Dame by 37 points, 80 to 43. The eighty points was Princeton's highest of the season by one and the 37-point victory margin was more than twice the Blue and White's previous high spread of 16 when it defeated Hamilton, 79-63.

Coach Marv Trotman's PHS squad (9-5) will be idle until Tuesday afternoon when it plays host to St. Anthony at 3:45 in its next to last home game of the season.

PHS experienced little trouble defeating St. Anthony, 69-54, in their first meeting in January, but the Iron Mikes are starting to jell. In their most recent start, they shocked favored Steinert, 40-33...the same Steinert team which upset PHS by one point two weeks ago.

"One of our Best," Trotman called his team's impressive shooting performance against Notre Dame last week "one of our best of the season. We got got hit hard in the eye with an elbow fighting for a rebound. Trotman reported Monday that Brown can now move his eye without any pain "everywhere but up and down."

King led all scorers with a game-high 29 points—five above his 24.1 average. Bobby, playing despite a sprained thumb on his shooting hand, was also a mountain under the boards—grabbing rebounds and blocking shots. So completely does he dominate almost every contest he's in that fans now accept his spectacular achievements as routine.

Watson, who had 15 against Trenton last week—his season high—came back with 15 again against the Irish. Steve Towns and Bullock, both seeing action after a week's banishment to the bench for disciplinary reasons, responded with 11 and 12 points. Daryl Marshall added seven, Craig Robinson four and Robbie McPherson, two points.

PDS 5 CAUGHT NAPPING

By Lawrenceville. With the toughest week of its basketball season just under way and with the seeding in the New Jersey State basketball tournament hanging in the balance, the Princeton Day School quintet was caught off guard last Saturday. Lawrenceville, the host team, took full advantage in an easy 82-56 win. The Larries were ahead 45-21 at the half.

Panther Coach Alan Taback hopes that his team, now 12-2, rebounds with a victory this Wednesday against the Pennington School. According to Taback's figuring, the first spot in the State's B Division could be awarded to either his team or Pennington. Although the seating committee met Monday night, Taback thought they might wait until the outcome of Wednesday's game to make their decision.

The top-seated club would play the bottom one in the opening round of the tournament.

Following the game against Pennington, which is paced by two high scoring guards, Wayne Emme and Jerry Eure, PDS will take on another potentially difficult opponent, the Peddie School, Friday.

"Peddie has proved that it can play with anyone or be beaten by anyone on a given day," says Taback. "They also have a real home court advantage because of the rubberized surface they play on."

Webster Stiffed. Last week the Panthers ran their winning streak to eight with a 88-49 defeat of Admiral Farragut. Princeton Day, paced by Ron Webster's 20 points, and 16 and 14 from Frank Konstantynowicz and Keith Thomas, outscored Farragut, 27-9, in the third quarter.

At the Lavinio Fieldhouse on Saturday the story was much different. The Larries extended their zone defense to Webster's side, and held the leading PDS scorer to no points in the first quarter, and just two in the second. He ended the game with 14 points, the only PDS player in double figures.

The extended zone, Taback said, should have created opportunities for the Panthers in the middle. It did, but the visiting team was unable to take advantage of them. "Tom Dalrymple had been sick both Thursday and Friday and he was just tentative Saturday," said Taback. "We just couldn't get anyone to score at center."

When Dalrymple was not in the game, PDS went from 6-6 to 6-1 in height at his position. That created problems on defense as well. "We were manhandled off the boards," said the coach. "They were getting second and third shots consistently."

On top of all those problems, Taback said, Princeton Day was tight in the first half and guilty of numerous turnovers, 37 by one count, throughout the game. Bill Caimi led the Larries with 14 points and 13 rebounds.

contests ahead.

Friday, Hun stopped visiting Perkiomen, 70-50, streaking to a 22-8 first period lead, and earlier it trampled George School, 79-39. The entire Hun squad had a hand in both victories, as the two triumphs pushed Hun's Penn-Jersey League record to 4-0 and its overall mark to 13-4.

The Red and Black will oppose Germantown Friends Friday afternoon in Philadelphia and then play host again to Perkiomen here Wednesday at 2:30. It was scheduled to meet Rutgers Prep here this Wednesday afternoon.

After that, Hun has upcoming tests against two strong league teams—Friends Central and Solebury.

Biff Hollowell led the assault against Perkiomen with 20 points, while reserve Mark Schwartz was the second leading point-getter with 12. Twelve Hun players saw action.

Co-Captain Brent Bystrycki was high for Hun against George School with 16. Mike Clark and Brian Logue added 12 points each as 12 players scored for Hun.

PHS TAKES TWO-MILE
But Woodside Loses in Mile.
Princeton High School's crack two-mile trio of Pete Nichols, Royce Flippin and Tim Anderson finished 1-2-3 for the eighth time this season in the first annual Mercer County Conference Indoor Track Meet of Champions held Saturday at Lawrenceville School, but Teammate John Woodside, favored in the mile, lost to Ewing's Jim Wylie by four seconds.

Nichols' time was 9:41.8, Flippin's 9:54.3 and Anderson's, 10:02.9. Woodside's was clocked in the mile in 4:35. Sophomore Fred Berklehammer placed second in the high jump with a leap of 6-0, two inches less than the winning jump by Bill Stewart of Ewing. Capturing thirds for PHS were Freddie Wilson in the 440 (52.4) and Steve Roderick in the 880 (2:04.2). Cathy Woodbridge of Princeton won the girls 880 with a time of 2:24.7, almost six seconds faster than her nearest competitor. Ten schools participated in the event.

6-0 dual meet record.
Earlier in the week, the Little Tigers kept their dual meet record a perfect 6-0 with an impressive 47-30 victory over Ewing.

Smith vs. Casciola

When Army and Princeton football teams meet in a pre-season scrimmage here next September, it will mark the first time that two Princeton alumni have faced each other as coaches. Homer Smith, who captained the Tigers as a fullback in 1953, has been named to coach the cadets and will bring them here on Saturday, September 14, to play a practice game with Bob Casciola's Princeton squad.

Smith, who was among the applicants for the position here first as a possible successor to Dick Colman and then a year ago when Jake McCandless departed, has been offensive backfield coach at UCLA. He still holds Princeton's single game rushing record—273 yards, set against Harvard in 1952.

Smith also in all probability set a Princeton record that year when he ran 93 yards for a touchdown against Yale in the Bowl. Statistics on individual plays are not, however, a part of the Tigers' record book.

Wilson won the 60-yard dash (6.8), the 440 (52.7) and anchored the victorious Princeton relay team with a 53.0 leg. Mike White won the 60-yard high hurdles (8.0), took third in the dash and led off the relay team. Nichols, Flippin and Anderson swept the two-mile.

In the mile, Ewing's Wylie proved that his victory over Woodside Saturday was no fluke when he nipped Woodside in the mile, 4:35 to 4:37. It was Woodside's first loss in seven starts.

WORKSHOPS ANNOUNCED

For Tennis Teachers. In preparation for teaching positions in its spring and summer tennis classes, the Princeton Community Tennis Program is hosting a series of three evening training sessions to be held in Jadwin Gymnasium. The workshops will run from 7:30 to 9:30 on February 27, March 6 and 13. The Community Tennis Program has group lessons for more than 2,000 youngsters and adults in the area, requiring a staff of 150 assistants, plus permanent instructors who conduct the program.

In the Wednesday clinics, university, high school and junior high school students will receive training in group instruction techniques. Although evening sessions are aimed primarily at applicants for jobs in the Princeton area program, students who plan to take a club or camp job this summer are also invited to attend. In addition, anyone who is interested in the techniques of group tennis teaching is also welcome to join.

Returning to conduct the Teacher Training Workshops this year are: Bill Humes, math instructor and athletic coach at the Princeton Regional Schools; Joe Diefenbach, physical education instructor at the Princeton Regional Schools; Karen Bull, instructor with the Princeton Community Tennis Program; and Bill Foreman, resident pro at the Princeton Indoor Tennis Center.

Co-directors of the Community Tennis Program John Conroy and Eve Kraft will lead the discussions and demonstrations.

Pre-registration for the workshops is necessary and can be made in advance by calling Mrs. Julia Rudy at 924-4343 for an application form or writing the tennis headquarters at 71 University Place, Princeton.

HALFWAY MARK REACHED
In Indoor Tennis Leagues.
Dana Carroll, co-ordinator of the Men's League now in progress at the Princeton Indoor Tennis Center on Washington Road, reports that the groups have reached the mid-season point.

groups, with the tournament players competing on Saturday afternoon and the Intermediate group on Sunday afternoon. There are 35 contestants participating in the 30-week program.

With the season half over, Marshall Schmidt of Princeton and Dave Sifter of Princeton Junction are attempting to protect their lead in the tournament group. Marty Schwartz of West Windsor and Jim Chu of Princeton Junction are vying for best attendance.

In the Sunday intermediate group, Sam Payne of Cranbury is the leader with Terry Pearce of West Windsor and Bob Little of West Windsor in pursuit. Ray George of Hightstown and several others are tied for best attendance.
